LAWRENCE WOMAN FOUND SLAIN

WILLEHAD HUGGING COAST

Ship, Probably Going to Aid of Bremen at New London, Keeping Within the Three-Mile Limit

The North German Lloyd liner Willehad passed out of the Cape Cod Canal at 1:25 o'clock today into Buzzards Bay on its way to New London, Ct., where, it is said, it will serve as tender for the long-awaited U-liner Bremen.

One hour and twenty-seven minutes were recuired for the steamer to make the eight-mile trip of the canal.

Spectators to an estimated number of 5,000 were on the banks or at the bridge piers at Sandwich, Bourne and Buzzards Bay.

There was considerable cheering and waving of hats and handkerchiefs. Captain Jachens of the Willehad stood on the steamer's bridge all the way. As the steamer passed through the draws of the three canal bridges, where the cheering was most pronounced, Captain Jachens replied with upraised cap.

NEW RECORD FOR CANAL.

The Willehad stole out of Boston harbor under cover of a thick haze at 4:20 a. m. This was nearly six hours earlier than it was expected to start. It skirted safely down the South Shore, keeping within the three-mile limit all the way, and anchored off the Cape Cod Bay end of the canal at 10:20.

It entered the canal at 11:58. This was at "slack water," with a minimum current.

It set a new canal record, as the Willehad, with its 382 foot length and 5,000 tonnage, is eight feet longer and has 625 tons more displacement than the Bunker Hill and Massachusetts of the Boston-New York line.

Captain E. E. Geer, superintendent of the canal, piloted the steamer through, with a tug ahead and another astern to help with guiding lines. The steamer used its own power with the forward tug towing a little. The speed through the canal averaged seven and one-half miles an hour.

TO AID THE BREMEN.

The Bremen, according to The Hague correspondent of the London Telegraph, as related in today's cables, started from Germany for this country on August 17.

The Bremen may arrive on this side about September 8. It has been persistently reported and it is now generally believed that the Bremen will try to dock at New London.

The sailing of the Willehad, which cleared for New London, has strengthened the belief that the Bremen is expected there.

The Willehad is the first German merchant vessel, among the many which took refuge in American ports when the war started, to leave its port since the Kronprinzessin Cecilie made its famous run down from Bar Harbor to Boston on the opening of hostilities.

But the Willehad took no chances on the high seas of Cape Cod Bay. It kept within the three-mile limit carefully.

LIMIT FOLLOWS SHORE.

There has been much argument as to whether the three-mile limit takes in all Cape Cod Bay. It does not. According to the United States Navy Department's ruling, any water in Cape Cod Bay that is over three miles from any shore is high seas.

At the navy hydrographic office in Boston the following statement was made:

"The three-mile limit follows the contour of the shore, only taking in such bays and inlets the headlands of which are six miles apart or less."

Zeppelin Drops Bombs on East Coast of Britain

By International News Service.

London, Aug. 24.—A Zeppelin raided the east coast early today, but inflicted no damage and no casualties resulted from the attack.

The War Office stated that the hostile airship crossed the coast about midnight. A number of incendiary and high explosive shells were dropped, most of which fell in open fields.

Shortly before 1 o'clock the Zeppelin flew out over the North Sea. During its visit the airship was heavily bombarded by high-angle guns.

WOMAN IS HELD AS SLAVER

Girls Give Evidence That Leads to Arrest of "Madame Olga," Fortune Teller, by Lynn Police

"Madame Olga," an aged fortune teller, known all over Essex County, with headquarters on City Hall square, Lynn, in the very shadow of the municipal buildings, is accused by the police of that city of using her fortune telling as a cloak to screen an improper traffic in girls.

SERIOUS CHARGE MADE.

She appeared in court today, following her arrest last night, and was held in $400 bail for a hearing tomorrow.

One was obtaining money under false pretenses—that is, telling fortunes. The defence on this charge, it was expected, would be that "Madame Olga" charged no fee, but "accepted" whatever money gift the caller chose to deposit in the handy little saucer on the card table.

The second and more serious charge was that "Madame Olga" was procuring girls for improper purposes.

"Madame Olga" is sixty-eight and her name in private life is Pearl Lincoln. The police say she has made a practice of distributing her cards as a fortune teller among girls coming out of churches. Some threw them away, others giggled over the idea, according to their natures.

GIRLS GIVE EVIDENCE.

But, the police say, a good percentage would, sooner or later, drift into the fortune teller's cozy reception room on the second floor in City Hall square and ask to have their future revealed by the cards.

Hard-working shopgirls—especially the prettier ones—would come out with their heads filled with new ideas, their minds glowing with visions of rosy futures, of wealth and ease and luxuries.

The police say that they have had their eyes on the "futurity" woman for some time, but that her arrest was directly due to recent information they received.

Three girls, from Malden, Everett and Boston respectively, were arrested a few weeks ago in a Lynn raid. They were put on probation. In turn for this unexpected leniency they gave the police information.

Lawrence, Aug. 24.—Following the finding of his wife, Annie Manning, dead in bed at her home, No. 9 Melvin court, with her jugular vein severed on the left side of her neck, Michael Manning was charged with murder in the district court today. When arraigned he pleaded not guilty and his case was continued ten days.

Mrs. Manning was last seen alive at 5:45 o'clock Wednesday afternoon by her fourteen-year-old son, William. The youth told the police he saw his mother on the bed fully dressed, with face downward. He spoke to her. She answered him. He then left and her body was later discovered.

Manning says that he went home at 7 o'clock and went to lie down with his clothes on, when he found his wife's throat cut. He called in neighbors and the police were notified.

The police believe the couple had a quarrel and that Manning killed her.

BULGARS FORCED BACK

French Drive Enemy Across the Struma, and Serbians Recapture Height That Was Lost

Paris, Aug. 24.—Both the French and the Serbian forces of the entente allies have won victories against the Bulgarians, it was announced in an official report from General Sarrail at Salonica, issued here today by the War Office. The French drove the Bulgarians back across the Struma river, northeast of Salonica, and the Serbians won back a height they had lost near Lake Ostrovo, on the allies' left wing.

The official report follows:

"Right wing of the armies of the allies—The enemy was forced to withdraw from the left bank of the Struma at various places and is retreating toward Seres.

"Between the Struma and the Upper Mojelenica valley Anglo-French troops repulsed without difficulty several attempts of the enemy to retake positions occupied by us north of Palmis.

SERBS RETAKE HEIGHT.

"In the Doiran sector, toward Ljumnica and on the whole mountainous front west of Mojdelnica, the Serbian troops are developing their offensive. On the extreme left they have reoccupied, through a vigorous counter-attack, height 1248, which is about three miles west of Lake Ostrovo. This height they lost on the afternoon of August 22."

Report Bulgarians Fighting Greeks

By International News Service.

Salonica, Aug. 24.—In their efforts to throw a line of strong defensive works all the way across eastern Greece from Lake Tahinos to the Bulgarian frontier the Bulgarians have precipitated a general engagement with Greek troops, which is still in progress near the Struma valley.

French forces of General Sarrail's command are bombarding the Bulgarian entrenchments on the Struma River line.

A fresh wave of popular sentiment in favor of the allies is sweeping Greece, particularly so because the Bulgarians have undertaken the occupation of Greek territory, which Germany and Bulgaria are said to have promised not to violate.

Bulgarian forces are reported to have taken Seres, although there is no confirmation of this report.

Seres is one of the most important inland cities in Greece Macedonia, lying on the Salonica-Constantinople railway. It is twenty-five miles south of the Bulgarian border and forty-five miles northwest of Kavala. The city lies near the northern end of Lake Tahinos.

Deutschland Under Water Only 100 Miles on Her Voyage Home

By International News Service.

Berlin, via Sayville Wireless, Aug. 24.

KEEN appreciation for his treatment at the hands of the United States was voiced today by Captain Paul Koenig of the merchant submarine Deutschland, which has just arrived from Baltimore with a cargo of incalculable value to the German government.

In an interview with a representative of the Vossische Zeitung, Captain Koenig said that the United States government had adopted an attitude toward the Deutschland which was just and entirely neutral.

Captain Koenig added in his statement:

"The American authorities protected the submarine's departure in every way.

"These measures of precaution were increased after an English man-of-war entered the port of Baltimore in the night time. Eight British warships cruised off the American coast, surrounded by numerous steam trawlers that were used to cast submarine nets.

"The first part of our homeward voyage was made through stormy weather, but our ship proved entirely seaworthy. During the whole voyage of 4,200 miles we sailed under water only a distance of 100 miles."

DEUTSCHLAND DAMAGED ON HOME TRIP

London, Aug. 24.—The German merchant submarine Deutschland, which arrived at the mouth of the Weser River on Wednesday, was slightly damaged, says an Exchange Telegraph despatch from The Hague today. The eastward voyage from Baltimore to Germany was made in twenty-three days.

A German wireless dispatch picked up on the English coast said that all the members of Captain Paul Koenig's crew were well.

"Reports from Bremen state that the Deutschland's arrival surprised the directors of the Ocean Company, as she was not expected until a later date," says The Hague correspondent of the Exchange Telegraph Company. "The submarine was slightly damaged and the members of her crew were very unwilling to talk of the homeward voyage.

"Captain Koenig is being feted as a national hero and has been summoned to headquarters by the Kaiser for personal congratulations. The owners received news of the vessel's progress seven days ago, and it was only then that the Deutschland's sister ship, the Bremen, was allowed to leave for the United States."

The Deutschland's time for the Atlantic voyage was twenty-three days; consequently if the Bremen left on August 16 and her speed is the same as that of her sister ship, she should arrive in American waters about September 8.

FIND ESCAPED INMATES OF ASYLUM

Two men who have been working at the plant of the New England Manufacturing Company in North Woburn, were removed today and taken back to the Danvers Insane Asylum, from which institution they are said to have escaped three weeks ago.

They are Irving Christine, 28, of Malden, and John Cook, also 28, of Boston. The men are said to have given satisfaction during the time they have worked at the plant. They denied that they were insane as they were taken away by officials of the asylum and members of the Woburn police department.

According to the story told by the men, they were treated as trustees at Danvers and were given the run of the grounds.

Two weeks ago they answered an advertisement in a Boston newspaper asking for helpers at the plant, where munitions of war have been made for the allies.

No one suspected that the men had been confined at an insane asylum, so far as is known, until the landlady where the men have been lodging noticed the name of the Danvers Insane Asylum woven in the undershirt of one of the men. She notified the authorities.

When taken away one of the men remarked that the only crazy thing about him was that he had not destroyed his undershirt.

President Again Confers With Roads' Representatives; 8-Hour Day Conceded in New Proposal

By International News Service.

Washington, Aug. 24.—Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore & Ohio; Hale Holden, president of the Burlington, and Judge R. S. Lovett, head of the Union Pacific, went into conference with President Wilson at the White House at 12:45 o'clock this afternoon.

They form the sub-committee of the railway presidents' executive committee. All of them refused to discuss the strike situation as they entered the White House.

It was rumored that when the executive committee placed their statement, containing a plan for accepting the President's proposition to avert a strike, before the entire assemblage of railway presidents, a heated discussion arose which threatened to be extended. The entire assemblage then adjourned until 3 o'clock, and it was believed the sub-committee went to the White House to report on the developments to the President.

The three executives were with President Wilson only a few minutes. They did not appear optimistic as they left the White House.

The International News Service is able to present the general outlines of the agreement reached by the executives' committee.

OUTLINE OF AGREEMENT.

It provides:

That the railroads shall at once accept the principle of an eight-hour-day and shall put the principle in operation at once in train service.

That the President shall assure the railroad lands that by January 1, 1917, a statutory federal commission, either the Interstate Commerce Commission or an independent commission, shall take charge of the collateral issues in the present dispute and shall be made permanent for the consideration of all future wage and conditions of labor controversies on the railroads.

That the President shall assure

ITALIANS REPORT NUMEROUS GAINS.

the railroad executives that the federal government will look with favor on an application for increased freight rates to meet the expenditure made necessary by the eight-hour day plan, and that the Interstate Commerce Commission will take up and consider this application at once, pending the reference of the collateral issues to the same body or another commission.

AMOUNTS TO SURRENDER.

These terms practically meet the original settlement plan proposed by President Wilson and they satisfy the demand of the four railroad brotherhoods for the immediate institution of the eight-hour day.

The difficulties confronting the railroads in their acceptance of the scheme worked out by their own committee arise from the lack of authority in the President to make any formal guarantee of legislation by Congress or action by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The executives' committee, however, was inclined to accept the President's promise, believing that the federal agencies would listen to his advice in both matters.

While the committee expected to have some difficulty in convincing some of the "old guard" railroad heads of the advisability of accepting the new proposal, they were confident that the scheme would ultimately form a basis of settlement.

They believed that even if minor alterations were necessary they would be of a nature which would not alter the plan to a point where it would be rejected by the President or the brotherhoods. Many of the executives were inclined to insist upon a more definite promise from the President as to congressional action and as to the outcome of applications for rate increases.

But the committee was prepared to point out that the President had called in Chairman Newlands and Adamson of the Senate and House interstate commerce committees and was prepared to convey their assurances that legislation would be expedited. How far similar assurances could be made as to action of the Interstate Commerce Commission was doubtful.

Further evidence that an agreement was in sight was given when Judge William L. Chambers of the Board of Mediation and Conciliation paid a hurried visit both to the railway presidents' conference and the brotherhood leaders. Previously he had been to the White House and it was understood that he carried an outline of the proposed agreement to the brotherhood leaders.

After he left the headquarters of the brotherhoods it was manifest that cheering news had been received.

The brotherhood leaders all appeared more optimistic and all talk of impatience had disappeared. The leaders would not make any statement, but intimated that one would be forthcoming soon from the White House.

Let Nation Decide If President Is Right, Says Dickinson

Washington, Aug. 24.—Judge Jacob M. Dickinson, receiver of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific, former Secretary of War, and counsel for the United States in the Alaska boundary claims, today gave out the following statement regarding the wage controversy:

The plain issue is, whether men operating the machinery of public utilities upon which depend, not only practically all the business of a hundred million people, but their very lives and the functions of all government, State and national, can enforce an arbitrary demand for increase of pay by threatening the general welfare of all the other people. If the railroad managers should seek to enforce a demand for reduction of pay by threatening a general lockout the people in mass would immediately overwhelm them with righteous indignation.

If the railroad managers yield, the principle of arbitration will be overthrown, the issue will be merely postponed and not settled, and will return in aggravated form, and public confidence based upon success.

A GREATER QUESTION.

It is a greater question than one of compensation to employe or return upon capital. It is vital to the life of the American people and they alone have the power to settle it on a stable basis.

The President has intervened. Some are saying he has been the arbitrator, and that in this way the principle has been maintained. This contention is manifestly false, and is made to mislead the public thought. The President has not made and cannot make such claim.

The employes distinctly refused all arbitration of the demand for an eight-hour day. The railroad managers have never made him an arbitrator. His has publicly announced that the question of an eight-hour day was not arbitrable. If he is not clearly right he has dealt a severe blow to the principle of arbitration. He bases his conclusions entirely on a premise that society has determined that the eight-hour day must be adopted.

This premise will be earnestly and honestly denied by a large part of the American people. Certainly society has not determined it in law. If so, the law would settle it and no such question could arise. Parts of society have determined it by law for special classes and special places.

The fact that it has not been generally decreed by law shows society has not determined the issue. The President has probably gone beyond the action of society. The most that can be said for his premise is that he assumes it upon his conception of what society wishes or may do. He may forecast correctly, but at best it is a prophecy.

Upon this, backed by the prestige of his great office, he has declared that the main question is controversy is not arbitrable and has publicly gone to the country on the issue and has told the railroad managers the responsibility for a strike upon this question will rest not upon him, but upon them.

No men ever were subjected to greater strain. They are not seeking to change the present status. They have not initiated any controversy. It is initiated by the best paid of railroad operatives, who are in no way suffering.

This time of a national election has been chosen. They are threatened to enforce their claim by general paralysis, and yet upon this state of facts and the premise that society has placed the question of an eight-hour day with a ten-hour compensation beyond arbitration, these men are fixed responsibility for a strike on this issue, and the railroad managers are put really in the attitude of aggressors.

HOW ABOUT OTHERS?

Now that the question of society and the eight-hour day is so conspicuously raised, and by such high authority, the people of this country, before this issue is decided on this premise, will want to know how far-reaching it is.

Has society definitely confined it to certain favored classes or is it based on a principle which, if accepted, will extend it over the entire field of labor? If so, the cost must be considered.

Shall it apply to all manufacturing operatives? If so, how will it affect our foreign competition, especially after this war is over? Does it apply to domestic servants and farm hands? If not, then upon what principle is the differentiation?

The President's declaration challenges the immediate thought of the country. Its soundness must be tested. If true, the people should not shrink from the result. If not true, then it should be accepted as a basis for determining this great controversy so pregnant with consequences.

8 FIGHTS SAYS B. & M. TO SAVE STIELOW LAW VIOLATED

Rochester, Aug. 24.—The legal battle to save the life of Charles F. Stielow has been adjourned until September 27 by Justice Adolph J. Rodenbeck at an extraordinary term of the Supreme Court. The move shifted to this city for argument upon the order obtained by Stielow's friends from Justice Charles L. Guy, in New York City, calling upon John C. Knickerbocker, District Attorney of Orleans county, to show cause why the convicted man should not be granted a new trial.

ATTACKS REPRIEVE.

Eight attorneys appeared in court in Stielow's behalf. They were opposed by District Attorney Knickerbocker and his personal counsel.

The plea for an adjournment was requested by both sides, it having been agreed there had not been sufficient time to investigate affidavits submitted by the defense. In a preliminary argument former Justice Arthur E. Sutherland, of counsel for Stielow, referred to the confession of Erwin King, since repudiated.

District Attorney Knickerbocker attacked the stay of execution granted by Justice Guy. He asked that if he vacated and the order dismissed on the ground that Justice Guy had no power and jurisdiction in the matter. Justice Rodenbeck reserved decision on this motion.

AFTER THE TRUTH.

"If Stielow is innocent I don't want him punished," said Knickerbocker. "If King is guilty we want to know that."

Justice Rodenbeck overruled a request of James W. Osborne, also of counsel for Stielow, for an order for the removal of King to Rochester. "We have been denied access to him," declared Osborne. District Attorney Knickerbocker protested on the ground that King was a material witness and in charge of the sheriff.

WILLEHAD FOLLOWS SHORE

South Shore is so much over three miles that there is no question about it. From the American standpoint the Willehad would be on the high seas the moment it went more than three miles from shore.

The Canadian interpretation is that a three-mile limit takes in all great bays from headland to headland. This interpretation, incidentally, was one of the causes of the International fisheries dispute. According to Canada's new ruling on how we entered the Willehad would still be in neutral water in Cape Cod Bay, but the American navy ruling says otherwise, so the Willehad hugged the South Shore from Boston Harbor to Sandwich breakwater.

MADE QUICK TIME.

The Willehad sailed at 4:20, or nearly an hour ahead of the time expected. It came out of drydock last Monday, anchored in the harbor stream for thirty-six hours and took aboard coal, ice and provisions in a hurry. Then it returned to its old berth at McQuesten's Wharf, East Boston.

Clearance papers for New London were taken out yesterday, even while the local agents for the North German Lloyd was ridiculing the idea of the steamer leaving this port.

The first report last night was that the Willehad would sail at 10 o'clock today. But steam was kept up all night, and when the waterfront came to work today it learned with surprise that the Willehad was on its way.

Any secrecy that might have been desired by the line was aided by the haze. Two tugs of the Boston Towboat Company pulled the steamer out into the stream. The tug Cruiser, Captoma Guard F. S. Clifford, who was on duty at McQuesten's wharf, a night watchman and the men aboard the Willehad were about the only ones who saw the early departure.

DREW 17 FEET.

The German merchant flag hung limply from the taffrail, wet with moisture. When the tug Cruiser, Coast pilot, who had gone aboard, took the liner in charge and steered it down the harbor, out through the Narrows and along the shore southward.

The Willehad was "light," or without freight, so it drew only seventeen feet of water. It left the harbor by necessity of keeping within the three-mile limit made necessary by the law. The vessel worked along at about 12 miles an hour.

The steamer Massachusetts of the outside line to New York brought in word that it passed the Willehad at 6:30 o'clock off Minot's Light.

The Fourth Cliff Life Saving Station at Scituate reported the same. R. Geer aboard, put out to the newcomer. Superintendent Geer went aboard the Willehad and arranged the details of the canal trip. A canal tug was put aboard and plans were made to start at noon.

The canal management anticipated no trouble with the Willehad, not even with a sunken collier still blocking part of the waterway at Bourne.

CANAL HAS ENOUGH WATER.

The Willehad draws only seventeen feet, and the canal offers at least twenty-five feet at low tide. The Cape at this point is eight miles through from shore to shore, but the full canal run, figuring the channel approaches at either end, is reckoned at about thirteen miles, which puts west-bound vessels into the open water of Buzzards Bay.

McLean Loses in First Fight for Father's Letters

By International News Service.

Washington, Aug. 24.—Edward B. McLean has been defeated in his first effort to obtain possession of the letters and private correspondence of his late father, John R. McLean, millionaire publisher.

Mr. McLean several weeks ago was granted an injunction restraining Francis T. Honner of Baltimore, from surrendering the letters to the American Security and Trust Company, executors of the McLean estate. Justice Stafford of the District Supreme Court, today dissolved this injunction.

The effect of Justice Stafford's decision is that letters left under these conditions are the property of the estate and not the property of individuals.

There was no indication of what the letters contained, although Senator Bailey, referring to the communications at one point in his address, said:

We allege that these are such as to put to shame persons in no wise connected with the conduct of affairs of the estate or with the settlement of the will.

Tesla, Inventor, May Be Jailed on Contempt Charge

Havemeyer Fights for Life in Boat; No Food 30 Hours

By International News Service.

Los Angeles, Aug. 24.—Adrift at sea in an open boat without food or water, for thirty hours, battling to keep the boat from being blown further away from land, T. W. Havemeyer, wealthy sugar man of New York, and "Tuna Joe," his Mexican boatman, were rescued in San Clemente channel and taken to Avalon, Catalina Islands, almost exhausted.

Mr. Havemeyer had been first blistered by the hot sun in the open boat and then chilled by the cold night wind. The engine of the thirty-foot craft broke down after Mr. Havemeyer had made several good catches of tuna.

PARALYSIS CALLS RICH CASES IN MILTON

Fourteen new cases in the State for the seven-day-four-hours period ending at noon, a decrease in the number of cases and deaths in New York, and the first appearance of the disease in Milton, are striking features in the infantile paralysis situation today. The new cases are as follows:

Boston—Three cases; names and addresses not given.

Milton—Philip Clark and Elizabeth Clark, No. 18 Cheever street.

Braintree—Robert Branley, No. 434 Hancock street.

Cambridge—Mary Fitzpatrick.

Framingham—Fred Plummer, No. 25 Concord street.

IN WEALTHY DISTRICT.

Southbridge—Jeanette Lavallee, No. 19 Coombs street.

Holyoke—Esther Nurmann, Southern Vernon street; Max Voight and Helen Voight, No. 858 Main street.

Pittsfield—John O'Brien, No. 23 Alcove street; Isadore Cohen, No. 268 Linden street.

Another case in Pittsfield which has not yet been given out by the State authorities is that of the five-year-old son of Dr. Thaddeus Sullivan of New York, who brought his boy to Pittsfield in June to escape the epidemic at home.

The case is at No. 256 South street, in the exclusive section of the city.

Three of the new cases reported are in Boston. Here no names are given out, the Board of Health adhering to its policy of endeavoring to suppress facts regarding the cases of infantile paralysis in the city.

A comparison of the number of cases in normal times and those of the last two months shows the tremendous increase in the spread of the disease.

From January 1 to July 1 there were but thirty cases reported in the State. There were 107 cases in July, and the August record, with a full week to go, is 154.

NEW HOLYOKE CASES.

Three new cases are reported in Holyoke, making a total of eight in that city. There are two new cases in Pittsfield, bringing the total of that city up to ten.

Milton, one of the healthiest and with the exception of Brookline the wealthiest town in the State, had escaped the plague. The cases located are both at No. 18 Cheever street.

To Put On Flesh And Increase Weight

Most people eat from four to six pounds of good, solid, fat-making food every day and still do not increase in weight one ounce, while, on the other hand, many of the plump, chunky folks eat very lightly and keep gaining all the time. It's all bosh to say this is the nature of the individual. It isn't Nature's way at all.

Most thin people stay thin because their powers of assimilation are defective. They absorb just enough of the food they eat to maintain life and a semblance of health and strength. Stuffing won't help them. A dozen meals a day won't make them gain a single "stay there" pound. All the fat-producing elements of their food just stay there in the intestines until they pass from the body as waste. What such people need is something that will prepare these fatty food elements so that they can be absorbed and carried to all parts of the body—something, too, that will multiply their red blood corpuscles and increase their blood's carrying power.

For such a condition it is well to recommend eating a Sargol tablet with every meal. Sargol is not, as some believe, a patented drug, but is simply a careful combination of six of the most effective and powerful assimilative and flesh building elements known to chemistry. It is absolutely harmless, yet has been wonderfully effective and a single tablet eaten with each meal often, according to reports of users, has the effect of increasing the weight of a thin man or woman from three to five pounds a week. Sargol is sold by all good druggists everywhere on a positive guarantee of weight increase or money back.

JEROME'S CALLS RICH MAN GIRLS' FATHER

By International News Service.

Chicago, Aug. 24.—Edward W. Morrison, a man eighty years old, has been named in court here as the real father of Anna and Alice Burnstein, whom he adopted three weeks ago. The girls are eighteen and sixteen years old.

The aged man sat shaking in a chair in Federal Judge Landis' court as Joseph Burnstein, a West Side junk dealer who was believed to be the father of the girls, made the accusation from the witness stand.

"He wasn't adopting anybody. He was just taking his own," said Burnstein. "My wife confessed on her deathbed that Morrison was the father of the children that I had believed were mine."

A moment later Mr. Morrison, from the witness stand, shook his fist and trembled with passion as he said:

"It is all false. I adopted them merely because I was a friend of the family."

COURTROOM STIRRED.

Burnstein's charge caused excitement in the courtroom. Spectators were again startled when John Sommers, a jeweler, testified that he had been Morrison's companion on many trips during the last twenty-five years. He said that during the last ten years he had received over $200,000 from Morrison to pay off obligations that consisted chiefly of bills for "joy parties."

This was the first intimation that Morrison, sole survivor of one of Chicago's pioneer families, had squandered part of his fortune beneath the white lights. It might never have been made had not the eccentric millionaire decided practically all his property, variously estimated at from $2,000,000 to $8,000,000 to his attorney, James R. Ward.

There was a $50,000 judgment against the estate, and the creditors, demanding a receiver, started the investigation in the bankruptcy court. The property deeded to the lawyer included the site of the Morrison hotel, valued at $2,000,000.

The investigation disclosed that only two days ago Morrison had assigned two leases on "loop" district property, valued at nearly $200,000, but it had scarcely begun when Judge Landis, questioning the aged man, asked him the reason for his recent adoption of the Burnstein girls.

"FATHER" TESTIFIES.

It was then Burnstein, as the recognized father of the girls, was called to the witness stand. He said:

At the funeral of my wife, I got into the carriage with Mr. Morrison. I said: Mr. Morrison, my wife has confessed everything. She told me the girls are your children.

"What did he say?" commanded Judge Landis.

He said: Well, we will fix it up. You go to my lawyer, Mr. Ward.

I went to Ward and told him I'd go into court and force him to adopt them if he refused. Ward fixed it up and they were adopted.

I did not receive a cent and signed a paper that I would never demand any. It really was not adoption, he was just taking his own children.

The will of Mr. Morrison's father stipulated that in case Edward W. Morrison, and a brother, who died several years ago, died without children, the estate should go to the city to be used for the erection and maintenance of a Morrison memorial school.

JEROME K. JEROME GETS INTO THE WAR

London, Aug. 24.—Jerome K. Jerome is soon going to France to drive a Red Cross Ambulance. The humorist, who is fifty-seven years old, has frequently offered his services in different capacities since the war began but hitherto without success.

By agreement of counsel before Judge Fox in the equity session of the Superior Court today Samuel B. Hastings, who is sued for divorce and whose property was attached for $50,000 by his wife, will pay her $75 on August 24 and $25 a week thereafter.

No action was taken on Mrs. Hastings' petition for money to defray her counsel fees during the progress of the trial, which was postponed until September 1. The money Hastings will pay will be in the nature of alimony.

The divorce libel, which was filed by Mrs. Hastings the early part of this month, charged cruelty and intoxication. Both principals in the case are prominent.

Hastings is in business on Friend street, where he is interested in a firm doing a large lumber business. He is also prominent as a horseman and has owned at various times strings of fast trotters and pacers that have been raced by him over the New England circuit.

The filing of the divorce libel brought to mind the romantic features connected with the marriage of Mrs. Hastings and her husband. They were married in New York in May, 1906. They had slipped away secretly and were married in the presence of only a few intimate friends.

Both lived in Medford at the time of the marriage. They had known each other from childhood and were near neighbors. After their marriage they lived at different times in Roxbury, Wayland and Lexington.

Neither principal appeared in court today. Mrs. Hastings was represented by Choate, Hall & Stewart and her husband by D. V. Nickase.

'L' WORKMAN'S SKULL IS BROKEN IN ROW

As a result of a row among employes of the Jamaica Plain car barns of the Boston Elevated railroad, Philip DeFranco is in the City Hospital suffering from a compound fracture of the skull and there is little hope of his recovery. He lives at No. 56 Waterman street, Somerville.

Salvatore De Angelo, a fellow worker, who resides at No. 52 Porter street, Cambridge, is under arrest awaiting the result of the alleged assault.

HULL 'WET' AGAIN AFTER 'DRY' HOURS

Hull and Nantasket had water to drink today, following a "dry" period from 7:30 to 11 the evening before, when there was nothing to drink—no water at least. Trouble with the Hingham Water Company's filling street main caused the drought. The West Corner district of Hingham was "dry" from 7 to 8 a. m. today.

GERMAN AEROS ARE DOWNED, FLYERS DIE

London, Aug. 24.—Germany reports that two german aeroplanes, which engaged in battle with French airmen within the German lines over Neuie, fell to the ground and the occupants of both were killed, says a Central News dispatch from Amsterdam today. Five allied macaines flew over Dison, a suburb of Verviers, dropping bombs, all escaping undamaged.

WALSH OUT FOR FITZGERALD AND COLE

Former Governor Walsh favors the nomination of Charles H. Cole for Governor and John F. Fitzgerald for United States Senator, according to a statement he made today.

"Mayor Fitzgerald did nothing to interfere with any plans of mine in any way, neither political nor otherwise," says ex-Governor Walsh. "I personally desire Mayor Fitzgerald's nomination, and in the campaign following the primaries will take the stump for him."

"I think Mr. Mansfield and his friends thoroughly understand me and my intentions. When they found that I was a supporter of Mr. Cole and could not be swerved from this support, they requested that I make at least this concession, that I should not take the stump for Mr. Cole during the primary fight.

"I conceded this request because it was in accord with my personal intention anyway, but this concession does not interfere with, or prevent the issuing of the statement that I shall make in support of Candidates Cole and Fitzgerald before primary day."

EVERETT CHILD IS SMOTHERED IN 'PIT'

Michael Kaleta, two years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Kaleta, of Lewis street, Everett, was drowned in the "pit" at the rear of the Columbian Insecticide building off Revere Beach Parkway. With his fourteen-year-old sister, Stella, little Michael had wandered down to the water. The next record, through a neighbor's boy, was that he was in the water, about thirty-five feet out.

When the frantic mother and her brother-in-law, James Kaleta, reached the spot they could see the feet of the child sticking out of the water. Charles Hooper, fourteen years old, rushed into the pit and brought the body ashore; and the police and Dr. Ralph McAllester worked valiantly for half an hour in an effort to save the child's life.

AUSTRIANS FIND HIDDEN TREASURE

Geneva, Switzerland (via Paris), Aug. 24.—The Austrians, according to a special dispatch from Innsbruck, have found the famous treasures of the Deichani monastery, near Cettinje, Montenegro, which the Monks had buried on the approach of the invaders. The accumulations were those of seven centuries. The value of the whole accumulation is estimated at several millions of pounds. It is said, adds the dispatch, that a peasant betrayed to the Austrians the catacombs where the treasure was secreted.

CATHOLICS ATTACK WILSON

By International News Service.

New York, Aug. 24.—Two strong resolutions, one on Mexico demanding that Carranza be held strictly accountable for acts of religious intolerance, the other attacking President Wilson for his charges of German-American disloyalty, were passed at the final session of the German Catholic Central Verein convention, which brought Catholic week to a close. The Mexican resolution was telegraphed to Secretary Lansing.

The president of the Verein, Joseph Frey of New York, tried to have the resolution about the President withdrawn, and said:

"At the time the President made that charge we should have challenged him to prove it or shut up. If we pass it now it may be turned against us and construed as opposing his candidacy, which we are not—at least officially.

TWO MEMBERS DISSENT.

Alphonse C. Koehler asked:

What about the thousands who want to know whether this body will stand up for the honor of the German-Americans which the President of the United States has assailed?

The resolution was carried with only two members dissenting.

The Mexican resolution read:

Our government having recognized the Carranza regime in Mexico, thereby according the so-called de facto government of the First Chief a place among the nations of the world, and our government having at the time assured the citizens of the United States that the de facto government of Mexico had solemnly pledged to the United States the guarantee of religious liberty to all Mexican citizens, which we, of course, understand to be that religious liberty and freedom of conscience enjoyed in the United States, which pledge, however, the de facto government has not carried out; we now, as American citizens, call upon our government to hold the de facto government of Mexico to the strict observance of this guarantee and accountable for the violation thereof. We also demand the protection of all American citizens and their rights by the de facto government.

"The real question in Mexico is religious, not agrarian, and cannot be settled without the United States stepping in," said Mgr. Francis P. Kelly of the Church Extension of Chicago.

He criticized the new Mexican joint commission appointed by the President, saying, "one of its members is to all intents a Protestant minister," evidently referring to Dr. John R. Mott, who is prominent in Y. M. C. A. work.

It was voted to hold the next convention of the Verein in St. Louis. The following were elected:

Joseph Frey, New York, president; Michael F. Girten, Chicago, and William Burgess, New York, vice-presidents.

A German Catholic women's union was also organized, with Mrs. A. Brosnick of Pittsburgh, president, and Mrs. Olga Frey, first vice-president.

The American Federation of Catholic Societies decided to change its name to the Catholic Federation of the United States and to hold the next convention in Kansas City.

WOMEN ORGANIZATION.

A woman's section was authorized to do the work of women under the supervision of the federation. The women organized immediately, with Mrs. Sarah Conboy, of New York, chairman, and Miss Catherine Germerhausen, Hot Springs, N. C., secretary.

The Young Men's Catholic Union will suppose any candidate for office who solicits support on religious ground. President John M. Slattery said:

"If a man asks us to vote for him because he is a Catholic we will oppose him."

J. M. Slattery, as president, and the old officers were re-elected. Bishop Hayes of New York was chosen spiritual director. The next convention will be held in Philadelphia.

START INQUIRY ON BREAD PLOT

By International News Service.

Washington, Aug. 24.—Chairman Edward H. Hurley and his colleagues of the Federal Trade Commission today began the inquiry into charges presented by Representative Rainey of Illinois that Western packing interests, by absorbing control of certain concerns in the so-called "bakery trust," were the powers behind the movement for raising the price of bread throughout the country.

Members of the commission called in Assistant Attorney-General Todd, and a lengthy conference was held as to possible procedure by the Department of Justice.

The commission today debated the expediency of recommending the immediate enactment of Representative Rainey's bill, removing the old war tax on mixed flour. The commission has been flooded with appeals from western milling concerns for a public hearing on this proposition before decisive action is taken. Several members of the commission asserted that the proposed law, which would give federal sanction to the mixing of wheat and corn flour, with certain restrictions, as to labelling, would enable the small commercial bakers of the country to produce a better loaf of bread at a much lower price.

Chairman Hurley would only say officially that the Rainey charges were so serious as to warrant careful inquiry, and he refused to say whether, in lieu of demanding remedial legislation, the committee might authorize criminal action against the principals in the alleged conspiracy.

Some of the biggest packers in the country are involved.

New, Positive Treatment to Remove Hair or Fuzz

(Beauty Notes)

Women are fast learning the value of the use of delatone for removing hair or fuzz from face, neck or arms. A paste is made with some powdered delatone and water and spread on the hairy surface. In 2 or 3 minutes it is rubbed off, the skin washed and every bit of hair has disappeared. No failure will result if you are careful to buy genuine delatone.—Advertisement.

VICE FUND USED TO BANISH 75 WITNESSES

New York, Aug. 24—Seventy-five witnesses needed in the protection, graft and white slavery investigation have been intimidated and driven from New York, according to reports of investigators to Assistant District Attorney Smith.

Most of the absent ones are women, formerly disreputable resort keepers in New York and agents of procurers of white slaves.

Mr. Smith has information that a large amount of money was collected in the underworld resorts for use in sending away witnesses against alleged grafting policemen.

Mr. Smith is informed that where the payment of money was not sufficient the blackjack and strong-arm methods of coercion have been successfully employed.

BECKER SYSTEM REVIVED.

"The old system used by the police," said Mr. Smith, "to set rid of witnesses during the graft inquiry which followed the murder of Herman Rosenthal by Charles Becker has been used, but not with the same degree, because the policemen implicated are not of the higher grade.

"The absence of the seventy-five witnesses hampers, but cannot stop, the investigation. Reports of investigators shows that most of them have sought refuge in Philadelphia, and some have sent word here that Philadelphia is 'wide open and everything goes' there. These witnesses have told their friends they will be safe in Philadelphia so long as they refuse to make disclosures concerning graft and white slavery in New York.

"The witnesses in Philadelphia have been located in Noble, Callowhill, North Franklin, North Sixth, Seventh, Eighth, Ninth, Tenth, Vine and Race streets in the Chinatown district. They are scattered among about twenty disorderly resorts which were visited by detectives and are having a good time.

THREATS MADE TO KILL.

"Two of the women witnesses who gave testimony before the Grand Jury, which resulted in five white slavery indictments against Lewis Botwin, are in seclusion in North Seventh street, Philadelphia. These women were threatened with death here after Botwin pleaded guilty and there was no longer any reason to detain them in the House of Detention as witnesses.

"Several of the women who had been sold into white slavery by Sam Kirsh, better known in the underworld as 'Sam the Pedler,' were induced to go to Paterson, N. J. Agents for the District Attorney's office found some of these women on State and Market streets in Paterson.

"The women said they had been told they could find plenty of business in Paterson and they could return in New York and get off the 'skillets' after the crusade is over."

Two more indictments for white slavery were filed against "Sam the Pedler" and one was filed against another alleged procurer who has not been arrested.

More indictments, it is expected, will be filed against white slave dealers today.

Gustave King, twenty-two, salesman, No. 2501 West First street, Coney Island, was arrested last night by Detective McGlynn on a charge of white slavery. He had been indicted before the Grand Jury by Carrie Kaiserman of No. 345 East One Hundred and Forty-first street.

MRS. H. DAVISON STARTS AERO FLEET

New York, Aug. 24—Mrs. Henry P. Davison, wife of H. P. Davison of J. P. Morgan & Co., is maintaining a very active aviation camp at Locust Valley, L. I. Mrs. Davison told a reporter why she had taken up this task, declaring it was "to show mothers that flying is sane, safe, wise and constructive work for their sons to take up in connection with preparedness for our national defense."

U.S. PRESTIGE IN SHIPS LOST ON PACIFIC

By International News Service.

Washington, Aug. 24.—The American flag has almost completely disappeared from the Pacific Ocean, while Japanese shipping has advanced until more than half the tonnage of the western ocean now is in the hands of the Orientals.

This situation, brought about by the European war, has been confirmed by a special investigation of trans-Pacific shipping completed by the Department of Commerce today. British merchant marine tonnage also has declined, but in spite of the war the British flag today still is flown on the Pacific by a fair-sized merchant fleet, according to the facts assembled by the department.

Before the war the United States, Great Britain and Japan shared the trans-Pacific trade. United States tonnage amounted to 21 per cent., British 33 per cent., Japanese 33 per cent., with the remainder scattering. The report on the shipping investigation of the department, which will be made public in about ten days, will show that American tonnage has fallen off to 2 per cent. and British to 30 per cent. Japanese tonnage, however, has increased until it now amounts to 55 per cent. of all the bottoms engaged in the trans-Pacific trade.

The department also has reports stating that Japan has all her shipyards working to capacity and now is intent upon launching a merchant marine which will mean recovery of prestige in the Pacific by the United States almost impossible.

MEMBER OF NINTH HURT IN EL PASO

Camp Cotten El Paso, Texas, Aug. 24.—Wagoner Patrick T. Cotter, Company A, Ninth Regiment, attached to the supply department, was injured today when a trolley car collided with a mule wagon which he was driving. Two of the four mules were killed and Cotter was thrown to the pavement. He is at the base hospital at Fort Bliss suffering from general contusions. His injuries are not thought to be serious.

Wagoner Cotter was driving across the track and the car is reported to have been going at high speed. Lieutenant-Colonel John H. Dunn, Major Bogan and Adjutant Murphy were appointed by Colonel Logan to investigate the accident. Cotter lives in the South End and is thirty-nine years of age.

5 TONS OF BOMBS ON NEW ZEPPELINS

London, Aug. 24.—In a speech Baron Montague, of Beaulieu, former vice-chairman of the joint naval and military board, said:

"The super-Zeppelins, which Germany is building, have a capacity of 2,000,000 cubic feet, length of 740 feet, beam of 80 feet, maximum speed of 80 miles an hour, a cruising speed of 35 miles an hour and a radius of action of 2,000 miles.

"The engines have a total of 15,000 horse power. The airships can carry a load of bombs of five tons. They are able to ascend 17,000 feet. They are armed with machine guns at bow and stern, and on top of the envelope. They carry a crew of thirty-five men."

ACCUSED BOSTON MAN ADMITS THEFT

Springfield, Aug. 24.—Henry B. Smiley of Boston pleaded guilty in court here today to the charge of breaking and entering the home of W. H. Wesson of No. 302 Maple street, one of the show places of this city, and stealing silver valued at $2000. He was held in $2,000 for a continued hearing August 30.

Smiley was caught by the police when he attempted to pawn the goods in a local pawn shop. He is said to have a record in Boston and is alleged to have served a year at Deer Island, being discharged August 7.

ANGRY BEES CLEAN OUT CHICAGO BANK

Chicago, Aug. 24.—A swarm of 10,000 angry bees, transferred from their rural home to act as an advertisement for a bank, broke out in revolt on La Salle street, cleaned out the bank and cleaned up the street. When the pedestrians heard the buzzing of the bees there was a wild concerted dash for cover.

A traffic policeman's whistle attracted several of the bees and they put him to flight, badly stung, as were several others. The bees then made a straight line for the woods.

SAY RUSSIANS FLEW THE SWEDISH FLAG

By International News Service.

Berlin, via Sayville Wireless, Aug. 24.—The Stockholm newspaper Dagblad states that the German freight ship Desterro, which was captured by a Russian submarine, was seized in Swedish territorial waters and that her captor flew the Swedish flag, says a dispatch to the Overseas News Agency from the Swedish capital. It adds that the incident has aroused much feeling in Sweden.

PLANT JUICE HAS SURE CURED HER

East Holliston, Mass., Lady Says Plant Juice Has Cured Her Stomach Trouble.

The benefits of good health are obvious to all. The value of a sound mind in a sound body needs no interpretation to people of education and understanding. It is only necessary to show them how this healthy condition may be obtained and preserved. No extravagant claims are made for Plant Juice, the new herbal system tonic now being introduced here, but that it will restore your system to a perfect state of health, if suffering from stomach, liver, kidney trouble or rheumatism, is backed up by statements of local people in signed testimonials who have used the preparation and are now loud in praise thereof.

Take, for instance, the case of Mrs. Ethel Newcomb, who resides at corner of High and Washington streets, East Holliston, Mass., and has many friends in that city. She stated:

"I have lived in this city for 23 years, and 23 years ago had a severe accident and injured my spine. It affected my stomach and I have suffered with indigestion and food fermentation for years. I could never get any medicine to relieve me and I had tried about everything. I was so bloated with gas that I had palpitation of the heart, headaches, backache, and was so nervous and restless I could never get any sleep at night. I had an X-ray examination, but got no benefit, and was so weak that I lived for seven years on graham bread and hot water. I was completely discouraged of ever getting anything to help me, when a friend recommended me to try Plant Juice and I did so. I have taken only three bottles of Plant Juice and I am now a well woman. My housework is a pleasure to me now and I am glad to give this public statement for Plant Juice."

The Plant Juice Man is at the Drug Department of the Houghton & Dutton Store, where he is daily meeting the local public and introducing and explaining the merits of this remedy.—Advertisement.

GERMANS REPULSED IN WEST

By CHARLES F. BERTELLI, International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Paris, Aug. 24.—German troops on the Somme front are still hammering away at the French positions south of the river.

Following a severe bombardment that lasted all day Wednesday, the Germans delivered a hard grenade attack in the sector of Soyecourt at the southern extremity of the Somme front, but it was repulsed, the French War Office announced in its official communique today.

To the east of the Meuse river in the sector of Verdun the Germans have been directing a violent cannonade against the newly gained ground of the French in the sector of Fleury.

The text of the official communique follows:

"South of the Somme, yesterday evening, after a very lively bombardment directed against the Soyecourt Wood, the enemy made an attempt to attack with grenades, which was quickly checked by our fire shortly afterward. Southeast of the wood an attempted attack of the enemy was taken under our barrage fire and was unable to debouch from his trenches.

"In Champagne several surprise attacks of the Germans against our outpost in the region of Tahure were easily repulsed.

"On the right bank of the Meuse the enemy violently bombarded positions that we conquered yesterday between Fleury and the Thiaumont redoubt. The number of prisoners taken by us in the course of this attack has passed 250, of whom five were officers. There has been a rather lively artillery combat in the region of the Chenois wood.

"Other than this the night was relatively calm.

"Aviation—On August 22, on the Somme front, one of our pilots was attacked by three enemy machines, but succeeded in disengaging himself from his adversaries. One of them he shot down, the machine falling to earth near Athies, in the region of Hem.

"Yesterday an Albatross was brought down by one of our aviators near Epoye, east of Rheims. Two other German machines, following battles, retreated precipitately to within their own lines, one in Champagne and the other in the Vosges."

WAR SUMMARY

German gains south of Peronne, against the French, were reported today from Paris and Berlin.

The Germans have undertaken a vigorous offensive on the southern slope of the French salient thrust toward Peronne. Their attacks after a preliminary bombardment resulted in gains yesterday, and after another bombardment further small gains were made today.

But these German gains amount to nothing. Like the British and French gains of the last month, they represent simply a bloody struggle over a few feet of unimportant ground. The fighting on the Somme has now assumed a character similar to that at Verdun, with each side making small gains and neither side able to make any considerable advance. Just as at Verdun the Germans are pushing slowly forward, so in Picardy the allies are making slow but steady advances. From a strategic point of view, the battle of the Somme has resulted thus far in a trench deadlock like all the other battles of the western war area.

The fighting in the Balkans has as yet assumed no particular importance; nor are there any real indications as to what we may expect there. Thus far, the Bulgars and Teutons have gained on the flanks, the allies in the centre, and the gains are substantially balanced.

It is fair to say—and it is probable that the allies will eventually act upon this certainty—that the Balkans constitute the most vulnerable link in the defences of the central allies. If communications between Austria and Turkey can be cut, then all Germany's immediate hopes of an eastern empire must collapse. An advance to Sofia will do more for the allied cause than an advance of similar extent in any other war theatre—and it is probably easier of accomplishment.

BIG ARTILLERY COMBT AT VERDUN

Berlin, Aug. 24.—German positions north of the Somme River were under attack last night, but all the assaults were futile, according to the official statement issued by the War Office today. In the Balkans the communication states the Serbians are still resisting the Bulgarians. Furious fighting is taking place. Heavy artillery fighting is going on at Verdun.

The official report says:

"West front—North of the Somme, the efforts of the enemy were futile. British attacks were again directed against the projecting angle between Thiepval and Pozieres as well as against our position at Guillemont.

"French attacks at Maurepas were repulsed.

"On the Meuse (Verdun front) the artillery fire in the Thiaumont-Fleury sector at Chapitre Wood and along the wooded ravine of Caillette French attacks south of Thiaumont work, broke down.

"During the past few days, four enemy aeroplanes were shot down, one near Bezenlin-Le-Grand, a second west of Peronne, the third near Richebourg and the fourth near Labassee Canal.

"East front—With the exception of minor engagements which were unsuccessful for us there is nothing of importance to report.

"Balkan front—On the heights west of Lake Ostrovo, the Serbians are still offering resistance to the Bulgarian attack. Their counter-attack against Dzemaat Jeri failed. All reports from the enemy regarding Anglo-French and Serbian successes in the region west of Lake Ostrovo in the sector of the Vardar river and along the Struma are pure invention."

ITALY ATTACKS FOE ON TWO FRONTS

By International News Service.

Vienna, via Berlin wireless, Aug. 24.—The capture of a Russian position and 200 prisoners by the Germans was reported today in an official statement from the War Office dated August 23. It also reports heavy artillery bombardments in the Austro-Italian theatre. The Italians are active in Albania.

The text of the communication follows:

"Russian theatre—West of Morlake the Germans captured by storm another Russian infantry position, taking 200 prisoners and two machine guns. Near Zabie (in the Carpathians) Russian attacks were repulsed.

"In the Kukul sector fighting continues. Further north there has been minor activity which has not changed the situation.

"Italian theatre—On the Isonzo front the enemy's artillery fire against our factors increased in violence.

"Near Vschein Stenstrik, an enemy biplane fell into our hands, the occupants being made prisoners.

"On the Tyrol front one of our patrols brought in 80 unwounded prisoners and two machine guns during an enterprise in the Pelmetal sector.

"Balkan theatre.—In the Avalona (Albania) sector the activity of the enemy has increased.

"An Austro-Hungarian battle plane piloted by First Sergeant Arigo, engaged four Farman biplanes of the enemy. One of the enemy machines was shot down near Skumbinith and another fell into the sea, where it was picked up by an enemy destroyer."

Report Allies Driven Across the Struma.

By International News Service.

Sofia, Aug. 24, via Berlin wireless, Aug. 24.—News that a decisive engagement was fought between the Bulgarians and entente troops on the Struma River in Greek Macedonia August 21, in which the allies were driven across the stream, was contained in an official statement dated August 23, which was made public by the War Office today.

The Bulgarians have counted 400 enemy dead upon the field up to date, one hundred and ninety prisoners were taken by the Bulgars, including four officers.

The text of the official report follows:

"On the Struma we defeated the enemy on August 21. The enemy escaped by flight to the right bank of the river. The whole country in the neighborhood of the villages of Jenikoi, Nevolien and Topalova is covered with enemy dead. We have already counted more than 400 corpses, among them the bodies of several officers. We captured eight machine guns, a large number of rifles and grenades, artillery material and wagons. We took 190 prisoners, including four officers, all unwounded, and sixty wounded prisoners. The battlefield was covered with kits, which proves that the flight of the enemy was precipitate.

"A squad of enemy cavalry, lured by the manoeuvres of our cavalry into our machine gun fire, was annihilated.

"French attacks during the last ten days against our positions south and west of Lake Doiran failed completely. This is probably the reason why General Sarrail reports the capture of places which were already in the hands of the French, like the railway station of Doiran and the village of Doloudzelyd.

"Our troops buried fifty French dead on the right bank of the Vardar valley.

"In the vicinity of Nayadagan we captured a hostile detachment and a machine gun. The French left seventy dead on the field.

"The operations of our right wing continue."

Russians Repulse German Assaults

By International News service.

Petrograd, Aug. 24.—German assaults launched on Wednesday in an effort to force the Russians back to the estern bank of the Stokhod river were all repulsed, says an official statement issued by the War Office today. A number of Turkish troops, that were fighting with the Austro-Hungarians in Galicia, have been captured.

The official report follows:

"The enemy offensive that extended as far as Bely, on the western bank of the Stokhod, was repulsed by the Russians in the fighting on Wednesday. Turkish soldiers are among the prisoners taken by us on the Zlota Lipa river in Galicia.

"Caucasus front—Northeast of Mush we have occupied the ground in the region of Arindovank village. In the direction of Mosul, south of Lake Van, we defeated four Turkish divisions. Two regiments were made prisoners. One was wholly intact and along with it we took many machine guns."

Report Bulgars on Struma Dispersed

By International News Service.

London, Aug. 24.—Artillery actions along the allies' centre and right wing on the Balkan front, were reported in an official statement issued by the War Office today. On the front south of Lake Doiran (the allied centre) there were no infantry actions, the report states. Bulgarian forces that entrenched themselves on the eastern bank of the Struma river were dispersed by the allied bombardment.

The text of the official statement follows:

"There has been great artillery activity on the Doiran front, but no infantry actions. On the Struma River front the allies' artillery fire dispersed Bulgarians who were entrenched on the left bank of the stream. Enemy artillery shelled Orliak bridge on the Struma. The Serbians hold the same line as was reported yesterday."

BULGARS BATTLE WITH GREEK FORCES

the campaign of the Teuton allies in the Balkans fear a drive upon Constantinople from Greece, by the way of Teuton, is indicated by the desperate efforts of the Bulgarians to build a wall of steel across Greek Macedonia, between the "Army of Nations" under General Sarrail and European Turkey. Both Russian and Italian troops that were landed at this port are now upon the firing line, the Russians fighting with the Serbians in the district around Florina, Kastoria and Lake Ostrovo.

The Italians have reinforced the Anglo-French forces which are attacking the Austro-German and Bulgarian forces southeast and southwest of Gievgeli.

Report Germans at Guillemont Checked

By SIDNEY B. CAVE, International News Service Staff Correspondent.

London, Aug. 24.—Attempts by the Germans to strengthen their hold on their position at Guillemont by a strong counter-attack has proved futile.

The Germans delivered an assault last night at Guillemont station, which is immediately north of the village proper, and also against the British forces holding a stone quarry in the same region, but the onslaught was repulsed, the British War Office announced this afternoon.

The War Office statement follows:

"During the night the enemy made strenuous efforts to regain lost ground between Guillemont station and quarry. After a severe bombardment at 9 p.m., strong infantry attacks were pressed with such determination that they reached the quarry in places. After a sharp struggle the attack was completely quelled everywhere, with heavy losses to the enemy. The enemy delivered a further intense bombardment, at 12:30 this morning, but no infantry assault materialized. Near Ginchy, however, the enemy shelled our lines heavily. He attempted a raid, which failed completely. In no case did he succeed in reaching our line.

"In a raid northwest of La Bassee we successfully entered enemy's [illegible] trenches, killing a number of the occupants and bringing back [illegible] prisoners."

WILL NAME MEN 'HIGHER UP' IN BAFF MURDER

New York, Aug. 24.—Judge Rosalsky, on the recommendation of Assistant District Attorney O'Malley, has accepted a plea of attempted murder from Joseph Zapharone, indicted as one of the assassins of Harnet Baff a year ago.

The plea followed overtures by Zapharone to tell all he knows of the Baff conspiracy, naming the "men higher up." He may tell what he knows to Mr. O'Malley today.

Zapharone was a bookie at the time Baff was killed in West Washington Market in November, 1914. Frank Ferrara, chauffeur, who confessed the murderers to the market, and Giuseppe Archiello, who fired the shot that killed Baff, have been convicted and are awaiting execution.

Several informers have already given the name of Greco as the man who hired the gunmen. They have also named the paymaster, who distributed $4,800 for killing Baff.

The paymaster is a fugitive and is an officer in the Italian army. He cannot be extradited. Greco was murdered.

Zapharone has information as to the subscribers to the murder fund.

Start Matrimonial Bureaus, Brieux's Advice to France

By International News Service.

Paris, Aug. 24.—Eugene Brieux, famous dramatist and member of the French Academy, with a view to encouraging marriage after the war for the purpose of multiplying French homes, urges the establishment throughout France of official matrimonial bureaus under the direction of the mayors of towns and villages. He says:

"Many young men are willing to marry moneyless girls and many young girls are willing to marry poor or mutilated men, but the marriages do not occur because the men and girls do not meet. Special registers should be kept at all mayors' offices, where eligible young people sign their name and give their age and profession so that anyone desiring to marry can find a companion without difficulty."

WAKEFIELD WANTS TO CLEAN UP LAKE

The possibility of an epidemic lurking in the green scum on the surface of Lake Quannapowitt, Wakefield's pleasure park, has aroused the citizens of that town to action, and a meeting of all citizens who are interested in removing the unsightly and unhealthy condition will be held at the town hall tonight.

CREDIT SYSTEM IN DRUGGISTS' DISFAVOR

The credit system and unsanitary soda fountains were attacked today at the fourth business session of the Rexall convention in Symphony Hall. Secretary Thomas V. Wooten of the International Association of Rexall Clubs told in detail how to make drug stores attractive and to win trade.

"See your store from the viewpoint of your customer," urged Mr. Wooten. "A successful druggist has to be a successful merchant. Don't compel your customers to step on the counter in your store when they come in to get waited upon.

ABOLISH "BACK SHOP."

"Abolish the back shop where men get together and have a club of their own. If a man is getting $1,200 to $1,800 a year for looking after your store, don't ask him to look after petty details when that same work can be done by the person who gets $10 to $20 a month.

"There is another interest circulating about a drug store. Make it a centre of information for tourists in your town.

"A clean clerk comes high at any price. Create an atmosphere in your store to get women customers. Good looks attract good looks. You cannot expect to sell up-to-date toilet goods without catering to the tastes and demands of the women.

"Get women to come to your store and you will get trade.

"I can always tell where a drug store is doing a good business by the attractiveness of its soda fountain. Never have a low standard about anything in your store. Keep up your bookkeeping and do what you can to do away with the credit system in doing business."

Mr. Wooten at the conclusion of his address was applauded and presented with a diamond pin by Judge George C. Blakeley of The Dalles, Oregon, who presided and spoke of the gifts in behalf of the Rexall organization.

One Rexallite at the Braves Field last evening lost his pocketbook, containing $45 and a collection was taken up for him.

H. J. Purple spoke of how to handle merchandise and make it sell.

"Advertise well and back your advertisement," he said. "Know how to handle a box of stationery so that when you give it to a woman buyer you know she will be delighted with it."

Chairman Ned Mitchell gave out the award in the store improvement contest. Leo W. Miller of Niagara Falls spoke of "Using Our Own Advertisements," and the pharmaceutical department was explained by Dr. E. S. Barker.

Most of the party took in the excursion for Plymouth. The delegates held a mammoth clambake in Pilgrim Field.

The great aerial carnival given last evening by the United Rexall Company in honor of the fourteenth annual Rexall convention was a pronounced success in every way. The fireworks and the aerial display given by Dr Lloyd Thompson were witnessed by more than 35,000 persons.

The receipts were donated to the Massachusetts Volunteer Aid Association at today's session.

RETURN $55,000 OF PANAMA FUND

State Auditor Cook today issued a report showing that the Board of Panama Pacific managers for Massachusetts returned an unexpended balance of $55,730.48 of the $265,000 appropriation for the State's representation at the San Francisco Exposition.

In addition, the board turned into the State Treasury the sum of $15,-023.37, which included receipts from the sale of the Massachusetts building and the furniture and furnishings.

The board also paid for the exhibits of several State departments.

STORM CUTS OFF PHONE SERVICE

New Hampshire was isolated this morning from Boston, as far as telephone service is concerned. The lightning and hail last night put out of commission practically every toll circuit between Boston, Manchester and Concord.

Comparatively few poles are down, but the wind and hail broke many wires and the lightning charges blew 45 simultaneously.

A similar condition prevailed between Portland and Lewiston, and out Boston off from points east of Portland.

Telephone officials say it will take twenty-four hours to restore toll traffic conditions to normal.

ROXBURY CITIZENS WANT SHOWER BATHS

Angered because the shower baths in the locker building in the William Cunin playground, Roxbury, were not opened daily at 6 p. m., workingmen of that section are planning for a mass meeting on the playground, at which a committee of prominent citizens will be appointed to wait on Park Commissioner Dillon to see what can be done to keep the showers going till 9 p. m. and all day Sunday.

Sox Face Hard Series Tygers Here for Three

By HERMAN NICKERSON.

With a good lead the World's Champions face the Detroit Tigers this afternoon at Fenway Park in the first of a three-game series which is likely to have a strong bearing upon the standing of the Carrican crew. Should the Champions be able to get two out of three or better there will still be the Browns to deal with before the eastern clubs are met on the journey about both circuits.

It can be seen that it is up to the Red Sox to keep up the pace they have set against the Cleveland club, and by so doing be in a position to stand the strain of the final whirl about the cities. This means that the season is drawing to a close and that these games count more than many think for. The Champs are in very good condition for the test and have the best spirit in the world to back their plays. The pitching is the thing that looks a bit weak, for the boys have been hitting the ball and fielding a great game throughout the series just closed.

FOWLER VS. MITCHELL.

It is hard to pick the pitcher for either club, but it looks as if Manager Carrigan would send "No-Hit-No-Run" Foster after the Tigers in today's game, while Jennings is likely to use Mitchell. There is the usual attraction in the form of Ty Cobb, who is getting his hits and playing his old game. He usually manages to have a good record in Boston, and the opportunity to compare his work with that of Tris Speaker, who has just left town, will cause many to go out to Fenway Park. Tris ran against some of the best defensive work he ever saw, with the result that he didn't fatten his batting average. He lost ground, so the fans will be anxious to see what the team does in the way of stopping Cobb.

Hughie Jennings is always a favorite in Boston, where he is admired for his true sportsmanship and ability to lead his team. Not much is said nowadays about Hughie and his grass pulling stunt. It has become an old story but like old stories which are good it may be still enjoyed.

Hughie is out there to make all the trouble he can for the Red Sox and he has his team going at a fine clip. They have come up remarkably of late and the interest in the series is much stronger than at any time the Tigers have been due to play here.

WAITING FOR THE TYGERS.

The rather light crowd of yesterday was in a measure due to the fact that many fans figured that the Indians had shot their bolt and preferred to wait until the Detroit team got into town to see if the Red Sox would be able to do against them.

The race is getting very keen and each game played with the Tigers is one required to get that lead which may be handy later, should anything happen to injure any of the regulars. The boys have played good ball throughout the series with Cleveland taken as a whole. They have, however, not made the most of their opportunities at all times and there has been many a run thrown away.

This will be corrected, for the men realize that they must keep going all the time. The men are together to a man, each pulling for the other and the visiting newspaper correspondents have been frank in their expression of opinion that they really look like the Champions they are.

New York is a club which will have to be beaten out as will the Browns, who have climbed dangerously close to that runner-up position. They will be the final attraction at Fenway Park until the closing games of the year, when the Red Sox meet the New York and Athletics. The season has brought good results so far, and the baseball followers are gaining in confidence in the Red Sox ability to land the flag. They have turned out in large numbers to support the team, and their rooting has been fair, as it always is in Boston.

With fair weather today the park should hold a large crowd. Four games in a row won from the climbing Clevelanders was some accomplishment and one that will be appreciated. Today is the day upon which the Boston Lodge of Elks will attend the game as the guests of their brother member, President J. J. Lannin. There is something doing all the time when the members of Boston 10, B. P. O. E., attend a game and Past Exalted Ruler Jerry Hurley promises some fun. There will be a band and the singers will also entertain.

The Detroit Club arrived this morning with the following players:

Pitchers—Coveleskie, Dubuc, Dauss, Boland, Cunningham, Mitchell, James; catchers, Stanage, Baker, McKee and Edward "Tubby" Spencer, who was purchased by Detroit from the Vernon (Cal.) Club. Spencer was formerly with the Red Sox; infielders, Bush, Veh, Young, Burns, Kavanagh, Fuller; outfielders, Crawford, Cobb, Veach, Harper, Heilmann.

Braves Open with Cubs Heinie Zim in Demand

Chicago, Aug. 24.—After a profitable stay in Cincinnati, followed by a day of barn-storming, the Braves rolled into Chicago this morning to assail the Cubs in their laudable ambition to gain on the Dodgers and gain the leadership in the National League race.

They gained a half lap yesterday by not playing, as the Cubs trimmed the Brooklyn boys and sent them out of town with an even break in the four-game series.

While Tinker's team did a woeful job in the East, losing fifteen and winning only five games, since coming home, is has suddenly developed symptoms of activity. The Cubs took three out of four from the Giants and split even with Brooklyn. Therefore, the Braves must work for whatever they get here.

It is probable that Manager Stallings will endeavor to renew negotiations for the services of Heinie Zimmerman. He was here a few days ago, as was Business Manager Walter Hapgood, but nothing came of the visit of either official.

M'GRAW TURNED DOWN.

John McGraw dropped in yesterday and made several fancy bids. Owner Weeghman turned a deaf ear to all proposals. He even went so far as to announce that Zimmerman is not for sale, trade, barter or exchange, but Weeghman, it must be borne in mind, is a business man and a bargain is a bargain.

Stallings feels sure he can handle Zimmerman. When going at top speed Heinie is a wonderful ball player, but the fans here feel he has not given Tinker his best efforts at times. He hit .276 on the recent Eastern trip, but when in front of the home patrons has been clouting the ball well over .300.

If it is known Johnny Evers would welcome a return to Chicago. However, if it is thought Tinker does not care for him. Weeghman at one time said he would exchange Zimmerman for "Rabbit" Maranville, but this appears out of the question.

Stallings certainly will bid again for Zimmerman, as he has stated if he had one more slugger to back up his pitching, he will pull the Braves to the top and land the National League pennant.

ALLEN CARDED TO HURL.

Frank Allen, always an enigma to the Cubs, is Stallings first pick for sinh duty today. The Miracle Man intends using the locals a surfeit of southpaw hurling and Nehf and Tyler are almost bound to get into the series, though Hon. Dick Rudolph is no cherry pie it will be a hard matter for the chief to keep him out of the batting.

On the baseball-storming yesterday one team won at Terre Haute, 9-1 with Nehf, Rogan and James dividing the heavy work, while the other squad came to grief at Bloomington. The Braves struck a batter in Schlueker, one of the stars of the Three-Eye League circuit, and were shut out, 5-0.

They gathered but two hits off the broiler. Reulbach and Barnes did the pitching for the Braves.

TENNIS FIELD CUT TO EIGHT PLAYERS

Southampton, N. Y., Aug. 24—Joseph J. Armstrong, Pennsylvania State champion for 1915, defeated Theodore Roosevelt Pell in the fourth round of the invitation tennis tournament of the Meadowbrook club. The score was 6-7, 6-2, 6-2.

The seven other surviving players are R. Norris Williams, 2nd, holder of the National championship in 1914; William J. Clothier, champion in 1906; Rowland Roberts, the Californian; Watson M. Washburn, winner of last season's tournament; Richard Harte, of Harvard; Harry S. Parker and Francis T. Hunter of Cornell.

William M. Johnston and Clarence J. Griffin, the National champions, won from Stanley Wainwright and A. M. Hyde, 6—3, 6—2. The Australians will meet Maurice E. McLoughlin and Ward Dawson in defence of their championship at Forest Hills next Monday. They are using the current meet as a means of graduating their play up to championship standard.

Heinie Zim Fined $50 and Set Down by Cubs' Owner

CHICAGO, Aug. 24—Heinie Zimmerman, the Cubs' erratic third baseman, has been fined $50 by Manager Joe Tinker for a stunt he pulled in yesterday's game with the Dodgers.

After the report of Zim's doings reached the ears of President Weeghman the latter announced Heinie had been suspended ten days and would lose his salary during the term.

In the fifth inning of the game Zim singled and Elliott bunted, instead of stopping at second, Zim kept on going and was nagged out.

"I'm satisfied he isn't playing his best ball and he'll either play the best for us or not at all," said Weeghman.

Wright Makes It Three in Row Over Paton

Fred J. Wright, Jr., the State junior golf champion, defeated L. B. Paton, the Homestead star, in the second round of the Boston Press Club tournament, 3 and 2, on the Wollaston links. F. G. Thayer, the Wollaston champion, lost to H. S. Phelps, 5 and 4 and the latter is paired with A. H. Goodale for the semi-finals today.

Paul Tewksbury of Woodland won from R. L. Smith of Winchester, and A. H. Goodale vanquished J. J. Gallagher 2 and 1.

The survivors in the second division are Tommy McCarthy, the former king of the right fielders and present Red Sox scout; H. Robson, J. A. Whittemore and J. A. Farren.

OPERATE ON JOHNSTON.

Chicago, Aug. 24—Dr. William Pitts, the Cubs' physician, operated on Jimmy Johnston, the Brooklyn team's outfielder, who was struck on the nose by a fast ball thrown by Mordecai Brown in Tuesday's game. It was discovered that the member was broken in several places and it was necessary to remove a portion of the bone.

M'Graw in Fine Dicker Young Blood for Cubs

By JOHN W. MORAN, JR.

When one stops to consider that the best John McGraw offered Charley Weghman in return for Heinie Zimmerman was Larry Doyle, he can easily see just why the Cub boss turned him down. Further than that, McGraw asked for Vic Saier, and in return for that accomplished person offred Fred Merkle. Then in additon "Mac" expressed a desire to possess Jimmy Archer and offered Kocher for "Jeems."

All of this goes to show that Mc-Graw is a most magnanimous person when he wants to be. Say what one will about McGraw he can never accuse him of being mean. "Jawn" offered that fine trio of youngsters for poor old men like Zimmerman and Saier, both of whom are slinging—with reverse English, however. Kocher is somewhat younger than Archer, but he'll have to go a great many more years to become the catcher Archer is or was.

WANT YOUNG BLOOD.

Both Weeghman and Tinker are desirous of securing younger blood for their team. Zimmerman is in especially bad with the Cub bosses and with the fans, too. It's a certainty that he cannot stay there and play and it's likewise a cinch that he goes to the club offering the best bid.

Considering the offer of McGraw, and that by Ebbets, O'Mara and Appleton, it can easily be seen that Stallings has the inside track. He has offered four young players, at least two of whom are knocking at the door of stardom. Than Eddie Kirpatrick there is no more accomplished infielder. Jess Barnes is on the threshold of fame. Edgar Collins with anywhere near a chance to play regularly must be reckoned with. Red Smith, as is well known, is no slouch around the hot corner.

At the Boston offices of the club nothing has been heard from Stallings today. The same feeling of confidence is apparent and B. M. Hapgood still stands ready to waxer a perfectly good cigar that Heinie becomes a Brave. That's the situation from a Boston standpoint this morning. There might be a pronounced change before another morning rolls around.

DELMONT ON WITH BRITT

Veteran Hopes to Shine with New Bedford Boy; Frankie Mack Gets in More Trouble.

By RINGSIDE.

Young Britt of New Bedford, who looms up as New England's best all-round battler among the 120-pounders and who claims he can readily make the bantamweight limit, and will do it as soon as the local promoters secure Johnny Ertle, the St. Paul Kewpie, or "Kid" Williams, the noted Baltimorean, for him, makes his second appearance of the Summer season at the Commercial A. C. tomorrow night.

Britt's task is to be Al Delmont, who formerly held the New England featherweight title, and who, in his day, was a mighty tricky and shifty ringster. Delmont came out of retirement a month ago and had it out with Howard McRae, the Cambridge 130-pounder, in the same ring he will meet Britt tomorrow night.

It was all McRae in the early rounds, but Delmont solved Howard's style along about the sixth session and carried off the honors in the stretch run. Hence, Al gained a draw where he appeared a certain loser at the halfway station.

BRITT A GOOD ONE.

Young Britt, a few weeks prior to Delmont's battle with McRae, gave the Cambridge boy nine pounds and a bad beating. The New Bedford boy was in front every foot of the way and made McRae look bad.

Same as last week, at the C. A. C. when Harry Carlson, a broiler, put Matty Baldwin to rout, when this section's old lightweight premier essayed to pull a come-back it will be the hard-hitting, well-trained youth against the venerable tricky battler tomorrow night. It is Delmont's tip he will not go down to defeat a la Baldwin. However, the talent has installed Young Britt the betting choice and he looms up as being a good wager.

Mel Coogan, the Brooklyn whirlwind, who delivered when on with Eddie Myers at the Arena a few weeks ago, meets "Kid" Henry, a tar who is some merry battler, it is said, in the semi-final number.

MACK GUMS UP CARDS.

Now it is said Frankie Mack weighed 150 pounds not 147, as announced from the ringside, when he went on with Vic Moran, the promising New Orleans lightweight, at the Arena, Tuesday night. Mack looks a bit, seriously big. He disappointed his friends by not making weight, or at least coming in at the 140-pound notch.

Leo P. Flynn should quit kidding with Mack. Claiming that the Beachmont boy is a lightweight, and then having him come in a neck over the weight, naturally disgusts every good boxing patron in Boston. Flynn and Mack's aliases claimed the local promoters would not tote fair with them. Tuesday night was the fifth windup date the Armory A. A. has given Mack in the past six months. He crammed up the cards when booked with Freddie Yelle in a bout that meant the New England lightweight title for him, if making weight and winning, and gets into trouble by not making any attempt to make weight for Moran.

MORAN WILL TAKE REST.

Joe McCarthy plans giving Moran a good rest, so that Vic's hands will mend. The New Orleans boy made good in emphatic fashion in his set-to with Mack although giving away some twelve or fourteen pounds.

Vic is willing, active little battler, a good combination of fighter-boxer, and, when his hands get right, can be assured another chance by Matt Murray, as the fans want to see him in action again.

By the way, good old Jack Everhardt, one of the greatest lightweights of his day, and who, like Ertle, hails out of the French Market district in New Orleans, saw Vic's battle with Mack. Everhardt is at Revere for the Summer and never misses the Tuesday night shows at the Arena.

FRANK BURKE PUTS OVER TWO WINNERS

Frank Burke of Byfield uncovered two likely candidates in Little Peter and Just Tess at the opening day's harness sport at the Marshfield Fair.

Little Peter won the Pembroke Stake for 2:35 pacers, while Just Tess got second money to Cochato Direct in the 2:20 trot. It looked as if the three-year-old could have sped around a little faster if absolutely necessary.

George Graves put over Tom Minton once more, winning in three straight heats handily. The Minton horse has improved wonderfully since Spring. Today's card includes 2:15 pace, and free-for-all pace, which brings together Earl, Jr., The Ideal Lady, Miss De Forest, Col. Forest and Buster Brown.

There are various contrivances which engender frigid atmospheres. One an ice machine. Another is a losing baseball team.

Playing too long on one club, saith an expert, interferes with a man's effectiveness. For instance, there is Hans Wagner.

LOOKING FORWARD.

Now come the melancholy days,
The saddest of the year,
The sandlotter, he up and says:
"We'll win the flag next year."

Connie Mack and Bill Hohenzollern are different types of men. Connie prefers a place in the cellar.

Far be it from us to use the boots on a man in order to kick; McGillicuddy must have a peculiar feelin' when the elevator man says: "Going up?"

No, Oswald, the $500 present to Bob Emslie was not donated by ball players.

Contrary to general opinion, golf is developing muscle. If it were a high-brow pastime Harry Legg would be called Harry Limb.

Speaking of highbrow stuff, we note that there is a five-cent cigar named after John Ruskin. And poor John has no comeback.

Bobby Roth drew a suspension because he heaved a bottle into the stand in St. Louis. A year ago he could have turned a machine gun without jeopardizing a life or a limb.

One of the crying needs of baseball in St. Louis is a nonthrowable bottle.

Baseball is a sport which develops manliness. What could be more manly than to sit in a crowd and throw a bottle at an outfielder's head?

All hope is not lost. The White Sox can beat McHenry, Ill., and Syracuse, N. Y.

LOAFERS' BUMMERS!

"The loafers!" Heinie Zim exclaimed, and threw the paper down,
And on his alabaster brow he wore a puzzled frown,
"The scribes are loafing on the job, no any man can see;
Since Monday afternoon not one of them has traded me."

Up to date, nobody has thrown a bottle at Heinie Zim's head. Owing to the war glassware is expensive.

There may be some truth in the report that Zim will be traded for Benny Kauff. Tinker and McGraw never have had any use for each other.

As Tinker said to McGraw: I'll trade you a corn for a bunion.

HARBINGER OF AUTUMN.

What though the brown and withered leaf be falling
And trees that once were green are on the bum,
What though the football coach be loudly calling—
It does not always mean that Fall has come.
Beneath yonder tree the withered leaves may crackle,
And grass, that once was green be dead and sere.
When J. W. Moran, Jr. buys new fishing tackle,
'Tis then, and only then, that Fall is here.

Canoe Regatta at Waltham Saturday

Saturday afternoon the Waltham Canoe Club will stage its fifteenth annual regatta, on the Charles River at Waltham, the leading event in water sports in this section of this country. Twelve events are on the program and the first is scheduled to start promptly at 2 o'clock.

The regatta is open to all regularly organized amateur clubs in the United States and Canada and entries are expected from many different clubs in this country as well as from the North. All races save that known as the "Tail End" must be paddled in A. C. A. canoes, the exception calling for canvas canoes not to exceed seventeen feet in front of the stern seat.

The following events will be contested:

Novice single, one-half mile, junior single, half-mile, tail end, one-eighth mile, senior single, half mile, tandem single blade, half-mile, war canoe, seven-eighths of a mile, tandem hand paddle, one-eighth of a mile, club four, three-quarters of a mile, tandem double blade, half mile, single double, blade, half mile, mixed tandem and girls' single.

WALTER COX PUTS OVER TWO WINNERS

Cleveland, Aug. 24.—Walter Cox increased his lead among the money winning drivers at the Grand Circuit races by landing two firsts at the North Randall track, the 2:08 trotting stake, with Mabel Trask, and the 2:15 pace, with Young Todd.

Mabel Trask was an even money favorite over her field, including her greatest rival, St. Vincent, and she beat him handily in the first two heats, but lost the final.

General Todd landed the 2:07 pace in straight heats, while Miss Perfection, after finishing sixth in the first heat, came on and won first money in the 2:11 trot.

Drew a Big Track Loss Hard to Pick Successor

By TOM THORP.

The enforced retirement of Howard P. Drew, the famous sprinter of the University of Southern California, marks the passing of one of the greatest track stars of all time.

Drew suffered a stroke of paralysis after competing in the 100-yard championship of the Far Western Association at San Diego last Saturday. It is the consensus of opinion of the physicians who have examined him that the holder of the century and furlong records will never don a spiked shoe again.

As a sprinter Drew in his palmiest days was without an equal, but he was the most unfortunate champion that the game ever knew. Many times was the little fellow deprived of a victory by some unfortunate accident. An injury to one of his legs caused him to relinquish his world's title to an inferior athlete at an Olympic championship meet, while his inability to keep off the hospital list has accounted for the majority of his defeats.

WITHOUT A PEER.

In proper condition Drew was without a peer in the present present array of sprinters. In fact, many experts are of the opinion that the dark-skinned marvel topped the great sprinters of all times, including Leo Myers, Bernie Wefers, Arthur Duffey, Johnny Owens, Speedy Rush, J. Maybury, Billy Schick, Dan Kelly and the other stars who have contributed to sprinting history.

Drew first came into athletic prominence while attending the high school at Springfield, Mass. His first race was run at the indoor games of the famous Boston A. A. In this event Drew showed the way home to as fine an assortment of scholastic sprinters as ever toed the starting line. So remarkable was this performance considered by the athletic authorities that Drew shortly after was selected as a representative of the United States in the Olympic games at Stockholm in 1912.

OLYMPIC BREAKDOWN.

In the final ten yards of the century sprint in this Olympic meet Drew met with the accident that the majority of athletic authorities generally caused his final breakdown as a sprinter. Although more than half a length in front of the field of sprinting champions of the day by more than a yard when he crossed the finish line, Drew collapsed. Mike Murphy, who was trainer of the team, had Drew carried to the dressing room, and an examination by a physician disclosed the fact that he had contracted the sciatic nerve running up his right leg. This accident caused his retirement from active competition for months.

About this time a rumor against Drew's amateur standing began to circulate. An investigation by those entrusted to keep the game athletics showed that Drew obtained the necessities of life while attending the high school by "smashing baggage" in the Springfield railroad station during the greater part of the day. As a result he was absolved from any taint of professionalism.

EQUALS RECORD.

On February 28, 1914, at Claremont, Cal., he equaled Bernie J. Wefers' record of 21 1-5 seconds for the furlong dash. Less than a month later Drew negotiated the century distance in the world's record time of 9 2-5 seconds, this figure being the record established by Dan Kelly at Spokane, Washington, on June 23, 1906.

Since then the speed king has equaled these figures on quite a few occasions. In fact, he holds a place in athletic history as the only sprinting champion who has equaled his world's marks after once creating them. Besides these marks Drew has to his credit records for the ninety, one hundred and twenty and one hundred and thirty yard events. The latter record he established as late as April 28 of the present year, at the annual games of the Smart Set A. C., in the Thirteenth Regiment Armory, when he completed the ninety yards in nine seconds flat.

Important Week in Track and Field World

The present week may be considered, so far as track and field sports are concerned, the banner one of the season of 1916. All of the most prominent athletic stars of the various sections of the country are scheduled to come together and settle their annual differences as to the individual champions of their respective districts.

The first of these championships brings into conflict the performers of the Middle West at St. Louis yesterday, while Saturday the Central Association holds sway at Chicago; the Middle States Association at Philadelphia, the New England organization at Tech field and the Metropolitan Association at New York. Never before in the history of the sport have so many high-class events been scheduled for a single week and titles are likely to fall.

After these performers have met and the local titles have been distributed, a good line on the merits of the men who will face one another in the national championships at Newark on September 8 and 9 can be had. At present, except from the reports emanating from the camps of the various clubs, no real line can be drawn on the athletic abilities of those who will take part in the big meet.

Therefore the performances of these stars during the present week will be watched with increased interest.

Neponset Team Charges 'Pros' in Game

The Neponset team of the Dorchester Catholic Club is all riled up over the double defeat at the hands of the St. Ambrose team of the same league on Saturday's games for the title. Vice-President Murphy has taken his pen in hand and the following is the result:

It was published in papers of Sunday that St. Ambrose of the Dorchester Catholic League won two games from Neponset, Catholic Club of the same league. Neponset fans and players say it was not St. Ambrose that won the games, but a team partly made up of professionals, such as Joe Pfeffer, who a few years ago pitched for the Boston Braves; Hank Daniel of Harvard, and the pitcher, whose name St. Ambrose gave in the lineup as Boyle, but who was none other than Fullerton of Lawrence in the Eastern League. Neponset Catholic Club challenges St. Ambrose, with the proviso, that they will not use outside in a game or series of games, on any diamond which they may play.

RICO DOWN TO JOIN DAVIS WITH GRAYS

Montreal, Aug. 24.—Manager Shean of the Grays, who is completing an overhauling Buffalo and bringing the International League flag to Providence, claims he is in receivership. Catcher Arthur Rico from the Braves providing Manager Stallings is able to secure waivers on the crack young receiver, George (No-Hit) Davis is here with the Grays.

YALE SPRINTER ENTERS.

Heaton L. Tousley, the Yale sprinter, has entered the two dashes at the New England track and field championships, at Tech Field, Cambridge, Saturday. He will wear the colors of the B. A. A.

BOXING BRIEFS AND GOSSIP

It was peculiar, pertinently so, that Jack Brooks, a referee of Manny Baldwin's professional fight would be the last to step into the famous little battle when he brought his quivering career to a close, as the individual who had thrown more than his weight of opponents over the ropes, Harry Carlson, the young Brockton pugilistic phenom, in his first start in the arena of the Commercial A. C.

It was back in 1902, at the old Lenox A. C., right around the corner from the Commercial, Baldwin filed his first engagement of any importance. Joe Gilmore was his opponent, and the latter was the one who was responsible for nobbing Matty's right hand that has since put so many to sleep.

BALDWIN is getting out of the boxing game with a dollar salted away. It is good money. That's tonight. He was a clever boxer, fought them all in his class and there were few and far between.

If it hadn't been for Mack's proud boast that Terry Brooks was "the wonder," he would have developed in New England one of the best lightweights that ever stepped into a ring. Mack has since had a gray patch running down the back of his head, but his ability remains going on behalf of the Terry.

BROOKS can fight. That's a positive piece of information. He can box, too, if he wants to. He's a lamentably poor boxer. But Brooks was always a pace-maker and dealer and any battler he can reach he can beat. He's an out-and-out slugger and game with it.

BROOKS has been a regular winner in New England rings of late months. His one bad performance was with Mickey Moore of Brockton, at Paul Benoit's late, lamented ball palace, the Boston Men's A. A., and Kinney Muir was entirely too fast for Brooks, which accounted for the all-nighter. The pugilistic should not match Terry with a fast scrapper, but any time he's in the ring with a polished driving for a stashing battle is assured.

EDDIE MACK is endeavoring to secure an Arena booking for Brooks. The snippety sportsman pairs with pride to Terry's record, in all of victories over Dave Travers, Joe Farren, Jimmy Fenner, Eddie Kelly, Charley Byrnes, Kid Goodman, Kid Beasley, Young Brown, Belgium Brown, Tommy Moore, Frankie Mack (no claim), E. Mackl, Ray Wood, Yank O'Brien, Tommy O'Keefe, "Kid" Alberts, Freddie Duffy, Freddie Tribe and Andy Cortez.

EVER HAMMER, Jimmy O'Leary, Frankie Mack, Walter Buttner and Harry Carlson are the only Mack boxers to meet with his batting charge. To show he knows how, Mack claims he will build a battler and a winner, take all heats with whatever one of these fighters Matt Murray figures would be a good drawing card with Terry at the Arena.

BENNY BURKE writes the AMERICAN stating that he is anxious to book Young Green, Mark Spencer's recent conqueror, with Al Delmont or Howard McRae.

Coast Team Is Selected Stars Coming for Meet

New York, Aug. 24—Twenty-four athletes from the Pacific Coast have been selected by the A. A. U. to come East to compete in the national senior track and field championships at Newark, N. J., September 9.

The selections were made by T. Morris Dunne of Portland, Ore., and John Elliott of San Francisco, members of the national championship committee, who attended the Far Western championships at San Diego last Saturday.

The commendations of the west-ern officials were received by Fred-committee, who immediately gave his approval to them.

The personnel of the Far Western team is as follows:

Fred Kelly, Los Angeles, 120 and 220-yard hurdles and running broad jump.

Earl Thompson, Los Angeles, 120 and 220-yard hurdles and running high jump.

Verle Murray, Los Angeles, 220-yard low hurdles.

Meredith House, Los Angeles, 220-yard low hurdles and running broad jump.

Fred Watkins, Los Angeles, pole vault.

Leonard Bazaril, Los Angeles, javelin and all round Decathlon.

Frank Sloman, San Francisco, 220 and 440 yards.

Carl Goolgert, San Francisco, 440 yards.

C. A. Reinhill, San Francisco, 880 and mile runs.

Edgar Stout, San Francisco, one and five miles.

J. K. Norton, San Francisco, 220-yard hurdles.

W. F. Sloss, San Francisco, running broad jump.

H. Liversedge, University of California, javelin and all round Decathlon.

Miller Hilliard, San Francisco, five-mile run.

Bruce Williams, Spokane, Wash., 100 and 220-yard run.

Charles Fee, Portland, Ore., javelin, pole vault, and all-round.

Sam Bellah, Portland, Ore., pole vault and javelin.

W. Hummel, Portland, Ore., 440-yard hurdles.

C. Cridi, Seattle, Wash., one mile.

Clarion Larsen, Brigham Young University of Utah, one mile.

Alma Richards of Provo, Utah, shot put, hammer throw, broad jump, discus and all-round championship.

Charles L. Sourse, Boise City, Idaho, javelin throw.

A. Nigro, Los Angeles, three-mile walk.

Fred Murray, San Francisco, 120 and 220-yard hurdles.

To James M. Curley
Mayor of Boston

Dear Mr. Mayor:

In your capacity as executive head of a great city, don't you feel that the material welfare of the people is, in a measure, under your control? You use every possible precaution to protect lives, health, liberty and happiness—your record is definite evidence of the fact.

Now, Mr. Mayor, many individual things make up what we know as "material welfare" and not the least of these is the cigarette. Are you aware that millions are annually consumed in your city and hundreds of thousands of dollars invested by the people in this form of pleasure? Isn't it true, because of these facts, that the cigarette has ceased to be a luxury and may now be classed as a necessity?

All this being true, together with the fact that seven-tenths of the male population smokes cigarettes, wouldn't you be interested in knowing that a cigarette has been created which insures quantity, quality and economy?

It will interest you to know Mr. Mayor, that the Lord Salisbury cigarette is the first cigarette to be made of 100% pure Turkish tobacco of fine grade (see guarantee on package) and to sell at so low a price as 15c for 20. It's the first cigarette to afford maximum satisfaction at minimum cost.

In thus reducing the cost and increasing the quantity of a former luxury which has now become a necessity, don't you think The American Tobacco Company has solved a problem in economics and contributed to the "material welfare" of the people?

Mr. Mayor, you recognize clearly the rights and liberties of your people. And while I wouldn't pretend to ask you to endorse this, or any other product, I am bold enough to ask you if it is not your rule to approve any movement that reduces the cost of living and adds to the material content of the people at large?

I'd like to have you try the Lord Salisbury cigarette, Mr. Mayor, just to see whether it is worthy and whether it is really the solution we have all been looking for. And, Mr. Mayor, look out for imitators.

Cordially yours,

Ernest J. Goulston

ALL was quiet in the little stone temple of Buddha. Before the desecrated altar of his god the young priest lay motionless, silent as the dead. The candles guttered and the incense sent up gray spirals of smoke.

The young English captain sped home to his bride with the stolen idol. He had given his beloved what she desired—and that was the end of the story, he thought.

Silence in the Temple of Buddha. And then—perhaps it was a vision of the young priest's distorted mind, perhaps the mystery of the East holds some strange possibilities which we of the West can never understand—but suddenly a queer radiance lit the empty altar, and lo! Buddha himself stood upon it and then stepped slowly to the ground.

He lifted the knife which had fallen from the young priest's nerveless hand and held it out to his votary. Slowly the Brahmin raised his head, took the knife and then the vision of Buddha faded from his eyes.

But the young priest knew his duty—Buddha must be avenged. The god had given his command.

And if Jimmy Barton had stood outside of the house to which he had followed the mysterious East Indian he would have heard the story of the theft of Buddha told by the young priest himself.

A Long Time Elapses

For Ali Jaibel, Rajo of Calcutta, was the priest, and Christopher McRay was the Englishman on whom Buddha had commanded him to take vengeance.

Twenty-five years had elapsed. But the East is patient. It can wait —and never does the East forget or swerve from the appointed course. Buddha had commanded Ali Jaibel to avenge him. And the command of the god was Ali's law.

When Jimmy and I found the deserted house where, just that afternoon Ali had told his following the story which I have written down for you—the story of the Stone God—it stood silent and forbidding with the unwinking coldness of exterior one feels always in empty houses, which seem to peer out on the world forbiddingly and to refuse the world sign or token of what is going on behind their grim exteriors.

We found the door open. Quietly we crept in through the dark entrance hall. Jimmy led the way up a narrow flight of stairs. They seemed to creak and remonstrate with us as we made our way up through the thick pall of darkness. Beneath one door we saw a betraying crack of light. That must be the meeting place of the East Indians.

A voice of slow musical cadence—the voice of the East was speaking. From the heart of the Jungle, where the first chapter was written twenty-five years before, to the heart of Western civilization the second chapter of the story of the Stone God's vengeance carried us.

Here it is:

Early that evening Ali and Mahmud, the teller of the tale, had gone in a motor cab to a house far out in the suburbs. Ali's knife had made an orifice between the window and the frame. And then Ali himself had pushed open the window and entered the house of his enemy—the house of the desecrator of Buddha's altar.

The Idol Hidden

At one side of the room there was a great vault. The man for whom they were waiting came from beyond the inner doors. He reached up and pushed the levers which held them. Then he came out toward the room where Ali, the avenger, was crouched. But his hands were empty—the Buddha was hidden away.

Before he could close the outer doors, which the East Indian knew might be sealed to the world forever if the only man who possessed the secret combination which opened them were dead, Ali sprang from his window parted and Ali leaped across the room.

In his hand was the knife which the young priest of Buddha had consecrated to revenge twenty-five years before. The knife lifted, flashed and fell. Christopher McRay reeled and staggered to a chair. And then the priest of Buddha spoke in a voice which held the pent-up hatred of twenty-five years.

"Do you remember me?" asked Ali.

Gasping in agony, McRay looked at his enemy.

His Dying Vision

In a flashing moment of that prevision which sometimes comes to the dying, the Englishman saw again the little stone temple and the black marble figure of Buddha which had become the desire of her eyes to the woman he loved.

He remembered his desecration of the altar—the theft and the haunting fear of vengeance which had followed him down the years.

Christopher McRay knew the East. He had never forgotten that he was a man marked out from his fellows. He had left India and the service when his child was born and had come to the West. Even further westward he had gone, haunted by messages and tokens, all of which bade him beware, since "Buddha never forgets."

And now Buddha's vengeance was completed—Christopher McRay knew that death was upon him. For this he had waited through long years. The terror of this had walked at his side. It had made him the victim of a secret fear. It had given him a horror of being alone, and because of it he had been unwilling to let Dorothy marry.

He could not bear to have her leave him alone with his terror, for the whim of the woman he But he was not unselfish when he paid tribute to love; and he was capable of lifelong selfishness toward the daughter of his sweetheart wife.

Danger for the Hiders

Because of his haunting fear—his tribute to dead love—he had deqied Dorothy living love. Some of this fear and terror the man felt had been evident to Mahmud waiting outside for his master, Ali.

"The dog of an Englishman—infidel and unbeliever that he was, one could see on his face that he had known—that the fear of Buddha had come down the years with him," sneered Mahmud.

I shivered a little there in the black hallway. I wondered what treatment Mahmud would mete out to us, infidels and unbelievers, too, if he were to find us listening to the secret conclave of his people!

Jimmy's hand sought and found mine in the darkness. I clung to it for a moment. It gave me warmth and comfort. And then I remembered that even terror could not alter the fact that womanly dignity ought to be above "holding hands!" A saving sense of humor made me laugh at myself—I was actually practicing what I preached.

The Indian Mahmud spoke again, and of the bitterness of his tone I crept closer to the door.

"But Buddha — where is Buddha?" cried the other Indians.

"You do not ask 'Where is Ali Jaibel?' Do you forget your master? It was he who went in search of the god," said Mahmud, and his smile became still more evil.

"Where, then, is Ali Jaibel?" As the Indians spanned the words they sounded like a chant—a dirge of evil.

Where Was Ali Jaibel

There was a moment of breathless stillness while I waited for the answer. Where was Ali Jaibel? Perhaps even now he was creeping up through the dark house with the figure of the Stone God above him as a fallman. Who knew what his fanatical belief might not make him do? And I realized that Jimmy and I were the only witnesses who could prove that Donald Jordan was not a murderer—and even if Dorothy had lost a father, she had not by a hideous stroke of cruelty lost a lover, too, since that lover was her father's murderer—and branded with the mark of Cain.

Jimmy and I must not be detected—we dared not be detected. That much we owed to the young lovers, who needed us.

"Where, then, is Ali Jaibel?" spoke Mahmud bitterly. "Remember that I stood outside the window, helpless to interfere, and that what came to pass happened quickly. He spurned the dying man with his foot and opened the doors of the vault—first the outer ones. Then he swung open the inner ones. I looked, and there on an altar stood Buddha. Even that cursed Englishman must build an altar to Buddha!

The Trick of the Vault

"And then, in a flash, as he pulled open wide those inner doors, I saw a heavy service revolver, such as the dogs of England use. It was caught back upon the framework on the altar where Buddha stood. When the doors were opened wide a wire fastened to it would pull back the trigger. I screamed, but it was too late. Our master Ali fell dead.

There was a moment of silence. And then a shout went up, "But Buddha lives! Our God is still in the keeping of those accursed English. There is a daughter. Buddha must be avenged.

Good Housekeeping Recipes

Good food properly cooked goes far toward insuring health and long years. As much depends on the cooking, however, as on the food itself. The following recipes have been tested and approved by Good Housekeeping Institute, conducted by GOOD HOUSEKEEPING, and are republished here by special arrangement with that publication, the Nation's Greatest Home Magazine.

All measurements are level, standard half-pint measuring cups, tablespoons, and teaspoons being used. Sixteen level tablespoonfuls equal a half-pint. Quantities are sufficient for six people unless otherwise stated. Flour is sifted once before measuring.

Pineapple Fruit Salad.

One medium sized pineapple, shredded; an equal quantity of celery, or very crisp finely shredded new cabbage, or finely shredded heart leaves of lettuce, 1 cupful chopped walnuts, tomato sauce, cooked mayonnaise.

Pour the sapo into a lemon-mold and let it stiffen. Turn out on a large round platter and fill the centre with the pineapple, celery (or celery substitute), and walnuts —which have been scalded and the skins removed—mixed together with mayonnaise to moisten thoroughly. Decorate with lettuce leaves and serve with additional cooked mayonnaise. If a border-mold is not at hand the tomato aspic may be solidified in a shallow dish, cut into squares, and the salad piled on it. Do not put together until serving time. To make the aspic boil together slowly about thirty minutes a can of tomatoes, 1 teaspoonful of salt, a tablespoonful pepper, 2 tablespoonfuls of vinegar. And 2 tablespoonfuls of powdered gelatin soaked in a little cold water. Strain and use.

Gooseberry Cream

1 pint gooseberries, 1 cupful granulated sugar, ½ cupful water, 1 pint cream, 1 tablespoonful sugar, ¼ teaspoonful orange extract, whipped cream.

Stew the gooseberries and the cupful of sugar and water together until mushy, then stiff. Make a boiled custard of the milk, egg yolks, remaining sugar and flavoring, stir in the sifted gooseberries, chill, and serve very cold in a deep glass dish with whipped cream piled on top.

Matched

Two clergymen, totally different in character, were yet firm friends. One was prim and precise, delicately careful of his linen, quiet in speech and manner; the other, careless as to dress, and rough in ways and words.

The latter had formed the habit of taking snuff, much to the disgust of his friend, who abhorred all such practices.

One day, at a ministers' meeting, Mr. Rindy pulled out his snuff, tapped it in the orthodox fashion, and took a hearty pinch.

Mr. Arnold, thinking to rebuke him, said, in his mildest tones:

"Mr. Rindy, how much do you think it costs you a year for snuff?"

"Don't know," was the gruff reply; "perhaps about as much as it does you for starch."

Not on Your Life

Softly the nurse smoothed the sufferer's pillow. He had been ailment only that morning, and now he looked up pleadingly at the nurse who stood at his bedside.

"Oh, please, did you say the doctor's name was, nurse, dear?" he asked.

"Dr. Kilpatrick," was the reply. "He's the senior house surgeon."

The sufferer winced and pulled a wry face.

"That settles it," he muttered firmly. "That doctor won't get a chance to operate on me."

"Why not?" asked the nurse, in surprise. "He's a very clever man."

"That's as may be," the patient said. "But no name happens to be Patrick."

Instant Hair Stain Better Than Slow "Restorers"

Some folks would have you believe that they have discovered a way to restore gray hair to its original color. That is impossible. It is easy and safe to apply the leading hair stain ever used anything else.

"Brownatone" instantly tints the hair to any shade of brown (or black) that may be desired. If the gray shows only here and there or is streaking your hair—if the roots of your hair are lighter than the balance—if for any reason you wish to stain all or part of your hair—use "Brownatone."

A sample and a booklet will be sent you from manufacturers only upon receipt of 50c. Specify shade desired.

A Girl and a Man

Agnes Passes a Restless Sunday Awaiting Philip's Call

By Virginia Terhune Van de Water

CHAPTER XXII.

Copyright, 1916, Star Company.

A wakeful night did not lessen Agnes Morley's sense of apprehension. Her aunt gazed at her anxiously as she took her seat at the breakfast table on Sunday morning.

"Don't you feel well, dear?" the spinster queried.

"Oh, yes; quite well; why do you ask?" rejoined Agnes.

"Because you're not got a bit of color," Miss Lucy replied. "And I'd be sorry to have your office work make you pale. Pretty pink coloring always keeps a girl looking young."

"Well, I'm hardly old enough to worry about showing signs of age," Agnes remarked, trying to speak lightly.

No, she was not old, but she was older than Philip in her estimation. She wished she was not.

There were several things about Philip and herself that she had been regretting lately, she reflected. The difference in their ages was slight, after all, and no regrets at the disparity could change it. But Philip could have avoided any discomfort in other ways.

"You are very quiet this morning," Miss Lucy's voice recalled her to her present surroundings. "Are you going to church?"

"I don't know—yes, I think I will go," Agnes said. "Shall you?"

"No, dear, I don't feel well enough to venture out in this dampness," Miss Lucy answered.

Agnes looked at the patient creature with compunction. How selfish she had been to be so much absorbed in her own thoughts as to disregard her aunt's many ailments.

"You rest, and I will wash the dishes," the girl said. "You must mind me, dear auntie. And I will get the dinner, too."

SHE WAITS FOR PHIL

Her aunt protested, but it was in vain, and for a while Agnes found actual relief from her brooding in performing the various household duties. By afternoon a warm rain had begun to fall, so that neither of the occupants of the tiny flat ventured out.

Perhaps if the weather had been clear, if Agnes could have taken a walk in the fresh and sunlit air her nerves might have grown calmer. As it was she could not shake off her feeling of depression, and, as she did not want to worry her aunt, she could not dispel her fears by talking them out. She longed for Philip's arrival, yet wondered if, after all, the conference with him would help matters.

He came in after supper, smiling and debonair as usual. Regretted that Miss Lucy was feeling so bad that she had gone to her room, then added impulsively:

"But, to tell the truth, Agnes, I am glad to have you alone—for there are many things I want to talk to you."

"Yes," she rejoined gravely, "and there are things I want to talk out with you."

"Well, you begin first," he suggested. "What's the matter? You look awfully serious."

"I feel serious," she told him. "You have put me in a very uncomfortable predicament, Phil—just because you would not be careful—as I asked you to be."

"Nonsense!" he declared. "I have been careful."

"Wait," she said, "until I explain—and then you can tell me what you have to say."

He laughed and nodded. But, as she talked his smile died on his face. She did not raise her voice, her speak with any display of temper, but it was evident to the lad that what he had regarded as an almost trifling annoyance in its results to himself had been a matter of importance in her estimation.

She mentioned first the way in which he had greeted her on his first morning in his father's office—as if she were one of his friends.

"I wanted to show dad that I at least regarded you with the respect due you," he declared. "He had addressed you just as if you were an ordinary employe."

AGNES ARGUES

"But that is just exactly what I am to you," she argued. "And you should not have shown any resentment at his recognition of that fact. If I occupy the position of his employe it is perfectly right for him to treat me as one. It is an honorable position—and if I do not object to it you need not. No—don't interrupt me, please," as he tried to speak. "Then later on when I gave you a message from your father you looked at me—well, as if—as if—you knew me very well."

"I do—thank heaven!" he eagerly claimed fervently.

"You should not show your feelings in your face," she reproved, ignoring his vehemence. "It made me very uncomfortable—and made talk in the office. Nevermind" for he gave vent to a smothered ejaculation, "I don't care to discuss that part of it." Her face reddened as she recalled Annie Rooney's comments and advice. "Then you sent Joe in with a note for me—and your father knew it was from you."

"How did he know?"

"Why, Joe spoke in a stage whisper of 'Mr. Phil.' Of course, Mr. Hale knew. And he was displeased, and rightly. Then, to cap it all, you followed me to the door and were talking to me in your most earnest manner when your father came out of his office. Oh, Phil,"—her voice trembling—"can't you understand? What must your father think of it all?"

"I have you told me all you wanted to tell me?" the young man asked. He had become as grave as she.

She nodded.

"Very well, then," he said, "it is my turn now. And as I have listened to your indictment of me—or of my actions—you must listen to my defence—and explanation."

Girl Workers Who Win

The Wife Who Came to See the Beauty of Life

By JANE McLEAN.

Emily was only twenty-two and she had been married two years. Of course, she was happy; she had married to be happy, and John was very good to her. There was Buddy, too, and he was the most adorable baby a mother ever had. He almost made Emily forget the fact that she could not do many things as she did before she was married, that she was confined closely to the house, that there was something for her busy hands to be doing every single minute of the day.

John was a clerk in a broker's office and he brought home twenty-two dollars to Emily every Saturday. It wasn't so very much, but it was enough to keep a tiny flat running, and Emily was young and capable and in love and when things went smoothly nothing else mattered. It was only when she was tired, or Buddy was cross or things didn't go right, that Emily wished for her old position in the office, with her independence and better clothes.

One afternoon, when the world was lovely, Emily took Buddy out in the carriage and walked him up and down in the sunshine. She felt quite happy and contented until suddenly she spied one of the girls who had worked with her in her old position coming toward her.

"Why, Etta," she said, smiling, "it's great to see you. How are you these days? And how is everything?"

"Everything's fine. Don't you wish you were back? I'll bet you have your hands full with a baby and everything."

Etta was wearing a smart up-to-date linen suit and a little white hat. She looked very cool and quite the independent working woman. Emily was acutely conscious of her well washed Summer dress and her plain little hat. But she smiled resolutely and replied:

"It's great to be married. You haven't tried it, and you don't know."

"I know you're tied down," Etta returned lightly. "Nothing like that for me. You look tired, too. You wished for her old position in the office, with her independence and better clothes.

One afternoon, when the world was lovely, Emily took Buddy out in the carriage and walked him up and down in the sunshine. She felt quite happy and contented until suddenly she spied one of the girls who had worked with her in her old position coming toward her.

"Why, Etta," she said, smiling, "it's great to see you. How are you these days? And how is everything?"

"Everything's fine. Don't you wish you were back? I'll bet you have your hands full with a baby and everything."

Etta was wearing a smart up-to-date linen suit and a little white hat. She looked very cool and quite the independent working woman. Emily was acutely conscious of her well washed Summer dress and her plain little hat. But she smiled resolutely and replied:

"I know you're tied down," Etta returned lightly. "Nothing like that for me. You look tired, too. You wished for her old position in the office, with her independence and better clothes.

"It's been so hot," Emily defended.

"Why don't you get your husband to let you come back to the office for a while? You could earn enough money to buy some clothes, and it would do you lots of good. I'm sure Mr. Blanchard would let you have your old position. He often speaks about you."

Emily's face lighted up. If John would only let her do it! Ever splendid it would be to have a position again, to feel that she was a factor in the world and earned her own money.

"Well, I'll see," she promised. "I'd love it, Etta. Come up and see me, won't you?" And Etta nodded brightly and walked away.

The small apartment looked very small and it was hot after she had carried Buddy upstairs. Emily tied an apron about her slim waist and prepared to get supper. When John came home Emily was greeting happily in his high chair and a pleasant odor was permeating the apartment. John's weary face lighted happily and he lifted Emily's face to his reverently.

"Life wouldn't be worth living if you weren't here when I came home nights," he said softly. "You women who fill tan jobs of homemakers are the ones who have the best positions."

Emily's eyes filled with hot, ashamed tears. She hadn't thought of her job as a definite job, but, of course John was right. How glad she was that she hadn't told him about Etta, Etta didn't know everything; she wasn't married to John, with a Buddy to look after.

The Right Side

"Wonderful mastery you have over these savage animals," said the admiring visitor to the lion tamer. "How do you manage it?"

"Easy enough, sir, if you keep on the right side of them."

"Ah, yes—but what is the right side of them?"

"Well," said the tamer, "I reckon it's the outside."

Anecdotes of the Famous

Lord Lonsdale tells this story about an American evidently determined to "go one better" than anyone else at a certain dinner table.

The talk turned about the strange things seen and met with by travelers. Lord Lonsdale himself told how he once, in a forest in Africa, had come across a number of petrified lions and elephants.

The American nodded at the story.

"Texas also has its petrified forests," he said calmly. "I admit I've never seen a lion and elephant turned to stone, but I once saw a flock of petrified birds flying over a forest in Texas."

"Oh, but come," objected someone at the table. "Would you put down, 'such a thing is absolutely contrary to the laws of gravity. If the birds were petrified the laws of gravity would naturally cause them to fall to the ground.'"

"Not at all," replied the American composedly. "The laws of gravity are also petrified in the forest of which I speak."

In the reign of Francis I. of France quickness of wit was often more promptly rewarded than accurate learning. The monk, Mathieu Ramus, did not lack merit, but he owed his first advancement, nevertheless, to a clever retort.

Francis, who was very fond of the game of tennis, was playing a match one day with Malmus. The monk finally ended the hard-fought game with a brilliant stroke.

The king was somewhat out of humor on account of his defeat.

"Remarkable!" he exclaimed, sarcastically. "To think that such a stroke should be made by a mere monk!"

"But, sire," replied the monk, who was not quick with his wit as he was with his racquet, "it is Your Majesty's own fault that the stroke was not made by an abbot."

A week later Malmus received the appointment as Abbot of Beaulieu.

How to Judge a Woman by Her Hair

There are always the well-known and semi-humorous methods, such as saying brunettes are quick-tempered, but there is really some sense in just noticing whether the hair is well kept to judge a woman's neatness. If you are one of the few who try to make the most of your hair, remember that it is not advisable to wash the hair with any cleanser made for all purposes, but always use some good preparation made expressly for shampooing. You can enjoy the very best by getting some canthrox from your druggist and dissolving a teaspoonful in a cup of hot water when your shampoo is all ready. After its use the hair dries rapidly with uniform color. Dandruff, excess oil and dirt are dissolved and entirely disappear. Your hair will be so fluffy that it will look much heavier than it is. Its lustre and softness will also delight you, while the stimulated scalp gains the health which insures hair growth.—Advertisement.

GIVE STUDENTS RIGHT TO QUIT GUARDSMEN

By BERT FORD.

Second Massachusetts Brigade Headquarters, El Paso, Tex., Aug. 24.—Married men among the 7,532 Massachusetts soldiers on the Mexican border and unmarried men with dependents charge that the War Department is raising what is akin to class distinction in opening the gates for college and prep students to return home September regardless of how long the National Guard may be kept on duty along the Rio Grande. In the Bay State camps sentiment appears to favor the men with dependents as against students on the basis that the student has only himself to think about while the men with dependents may have a dozen.

It is argued that nine times out of ten the student is so well fixed that he can afford to remain in the service even on a "watchful waiting" policy while the soldiers with dependents might be sent home to work, with hostilities remote.

The agitation has been started by an order issued direct from the Adjutant-General's office in Washington. The order reads in part:

"The organizations which are composed of students of colleges or schools and which have been mustered into the service of the United States, will remain in that service for the time being. Those organizations which have not been sent to the Mexican border prior to August 1, 1916, will not be sent there unless some unforeseen need arises for their services.

"Should the National Guard be retained in the service of the United States until September 1, 1916, all organizations composed of students of colleges or schools will be returned to their home stations on September 1, 1916, and will be mustered out of the service of the United States as soon thereafter as practicable, unless the military situation at that time shall be such as to render their retention in the service necessary."

The telegraphic protest made by Colonel John H. Sherburne to United States Senator John W. Weeks because of the tardiness of the army paymaster in paying the First Massachusetts Field Artillery bore fruit.

Colonel Sherburne's command has been paid. Ninety thousand dollars seemed to drop out of the clouds and enough more is at hand to pay the long suffering Eighth and the ten companies of the Ninth that have been strung along 100 miles of outposts, and the other New England units at distant points on the border.

The paymaster reported absence of funds and it looked as if Federal pay would have to be deferred another month when Colonel Sherburne got busy with Washington.

BANDIT VILLA HAS LOST HIS PRESTIGE

Washington, Aug. 24.—In a telegram to the War Department Brigadier-General Pershing reported that Francisco Villa when last heard from was making his way south into Durango with small following, and it was generally believed that his prestige was gone, and that he never again could become a serious factor in Mexican affairs. General Pershing said that until recently Villa had been secluded in the mountains of southern Chichuhua, where he was driven last April by American troops.

BANGOR ROAD HEAD OPPOSED TO CARMEN

Bangor, Me., Aug. 24.—President E. C. Ryder of the Bangor Railway & Electric Company refused to sign a contract with the local carmen's union which involved recognition of the union and submission of disagreements between the men and the company to a board of arbitration.

President Ryder stated that this involved a division of authority to which the company could not assent under any conditions, but that he was willing to carry on further negotiations with the men with a view to settling the matter without a strike if at all possible.

REPORT LIEBKNECHT APPEAL IS REFUSED

London, Aug. 24.—A Reuter dispatch says a semi-official statement, issued at Berlin, announced that the Supreme Court-Martial had dismissed the appeal of Dr. Karl Liebknecht, increasing the sentence to four years and one month of penal servitude, expelling him from the army, and depriving him of his civil rights for six years for attempted treason and resistance of armed power. Liebknecht can appeal from the ruling.

ORLEANS HOLDS LOWEST TAX RECORD

Eighty-five out of 116 Massachusetts municipalities thus far announcing their tax rates show a reduction from 1915. There are 51 increases and 21 rates unchanged from last year.

The average decrease in the rates thus far announced is 19 cents per $1,000 under the 1915 average. Average rate this year is $16.29.

The lowest rate thus far reported is $12.50 by Orleans, with West Tisbury second at $16, a reduction of $3 from 1915. The highest rate is $23.70 by Lee, with Medway second, $22.80. In 1915 the highest rate of the 333 municipalities in the State was $30 by New Salem in Franklin County, the lowest $9 by Orleans.

Ten towns showing the largest increases in rates are Mashpee $8.50, Salisbury $8.40, Pembroke $5.80 and Hamilton and Brewster each $5. The three towns showing the largest decreases are Holliston $8, Middleton $6.50, Hopkinton $5.

Watertown, Needham, Milton and Wareham rates are the highest in the history of those municipalities. Westwood rate is lowest on record.

Asks Police to Locate Son.

Superintendent Crowley of the Boston police has been asked to locate Hazlewood C. Tozier, who is said to be employed as a waiter in Boston restaurants. Tozier's mother is very ill in Middleton, and wants to locate the son.

Amusements. Amusements.

SINCE the first Cinematograph of Lumiere the advancement of the Motion Picture has been unparalleled in swift and progressive achievement. The milestones in the path of its upward climb are plainly marked:

1. The first 5-minute episode.
2. The 15-minute condensed drama.
3. The multiple reel feature.
4. Griffith's "Birth of a Nation."
5. Ince's $1,000,000 Spectacle, "Civilization" —the Titan of Photoplays, achieving effects never even dreamed of as within the range of the camera.

The motion picture that Henry Ford paid $1,000 to see.

TODAY'S STOCK MARKETS

By W. H. ROSS,
Financial Editor

Stocks were irregular in New York by noon with coppers and rises strong and railroads weak. Most of the war industrials were lower. Steel issues also sold lower. U. S. Steel had declining fractionally. It showed a slight gain during the morning, but was below yesterday's closing price at the start and most of the time. War was much less active. Trading in general greatly diminished in volume.

CHANGES AT NOON.

Declines at 12 o'clock included Great Northern Ore 1, Colorado Fuel ¼, U. S. Steel ⅝, Canadian Pacific ½, Southern Pacific ¼, Chesapeake & Ohio ⅝, Baltimore & Ohio ⅝, Reading ¼, Lehigh Valley ⅛, St. Paul ½, Baldwin ½, Industrial Alcohol ¼, Maxwell ⅛, Studebaker ⅛ and Marine preferred ⅛.

Among gains were Butte & Superior 1¼, American Zinc 1¼, U. S. Smelting 1, United Fruit 1¼, Crucible ¼, Distillers ¼, Mexican Petroleum ⅜, Wallye-Overland ⅜, Republic Iron & Ohio ⅝, Inspiration 2, Kennecott ½, Utah Copper ½, Union Pacific ⅜, N. Y. Central ⅛, New Haven ⅛, Erie ⅛, Erie 1st ⅛.

American Locomotive was unchanged.

COPPERS IMPROVED LOCALLY.

By noon coppers had become a little more active in the Boston market and had developed a better tone. Arizona & Maine had declined to 36, its lowest for the year being 35. Alaska, Gulf & West Indies common was weak at the start, but improved. It advanced two points from its morning low mark. Quincy and Granby were unchanged.

BOSTON CURB TRADING QUIET.

Trading on the Boston Curb was also of lessened volume and price changes were mixed as to gains and losses. Rilla and National Zinc were the most active stocks. Gains at the end of an hour included Jerome Verde 1-16, Nixon 3 cents, National Zinc 1 cent, Rilla ¼2 cents and United Verde ⅛. Among declines were American Zinc 3 points, Boston Sly 1-16, Mexican Metals 2 cents, Porcupine Premier 1 cent and Shamrock 1 cent.

IRREGULAR AT THE START.

Prices were irregular in New York with the majority of issues higher. The earliest trade was dull. The advance was checked within a few minutes by realization selling. Traders said that the strong aggressive buying power was general disposition to take profits. Coppers were fairly active as a class. Railroads were dull with no material changes and rather inactive. While reports from Washington indicate that an avoidance of a railway strike, there is great uncertainty and a settlement of settlement will be reached. Speculators are again in a waiting mood. The steel interest has diminished, reflecting the technical aspect of the market.

BOSTON BEGAN DULL.

The Boston market was decidedly dull at the beginning but the strength of the Atlantic, Gulf & West Indies became unsettling and the bearish news in U. S. Smelting as well. Most coppers were neglected for a while. Boston & Maine opened a shade lower.

Escapes Injury in Fall.

William Farnsworth, who fell twenty feet when the staging upon which he was working at No. 44 Farnsworth street, South Boston, collapsed, and who was reported to be in a dying condition at the Massachusetts General Hospital, was discharged from that institution. It was thought several of his ribs were fractured.

AUTOIST HELD FOR ROXBURY MAN'S DEATH

Patrick Reilly, a teamster of No. 4 Penryn street, Roxbury, died early today at the City Hospital from injuries received when struck by an automobile on Columbus avenue, near West Newton street, South End.

The automobile was the property of Albert Bosch and was being operated by Budd B. Lawrence of No. 5 Olmstead street, Jamaica Plain. Budd is alleged to have fled after hitting Reilly, but later drove to the police station and gave himself up. He was held pending Reilly's injuries and after Reilly died he was charged with manslaughter. He will appear in the Municipal Court today.

Reilly was crossing the street when the accident occurred. Apparently he did not see the oncoming automobile as it struck him with considerable force, throwing him violently to the pavement. Besides his head, he received a compound fracture of the skull and other injuries. He was picked up unconscious and rushed to the hospital, dying later without recovering his senses.

The Boston & Maine

Why New England Has Lost Its Leadership in Manufacturing

THE Boston & Maine Railroad reorganization plan seems heading towards the rocks. This was not originally the plan of any financial pirates of Wall Street or of any Wall Street jackals in State Street. It was the result of conferences with such men as Mr. Justice Louis D. Brandeis, United States Attorney-General Gregory, United States District Attorney Anderson, Governor Walsh, the Massachusetts Railroad Commission, the Chamber of Commerce and a number of unofficial persons whose independence of financial influence is well known.

The plan was recommended by Governor Walsh in his first inaugural message. It was drawn by Mr. Anderson as attorney for the Public Service Commission. It has been approved by every disinterested body and every intelligent and disinterested man in this New England community. It met a serious reverse at the hands of the New Hampshire Legislature last year through the influence of one of the worst figures in New England—Mr. Benjamin Kimball of Concord, whose political under-world activities in New Hampshire some recent public investigations have shown to be most baleful and discreditable. The obstruction offered by Mr. Kimball and his coadjutors in the Connecticut River Railroad are arbitrary, unreasonable and contrary to public interest.

The plan of reorganization has one fundamental principle without which the Boston & Maine cannot be placed upon a sound financial basis. It is the destruction of the fixed charges contained in the present leases. This is a matter of extreme and vital importance to the business men of New England. The method of constructing a railroad system by a series of leases which guarantee dividends for years and years in the future without reference to changes in conditions, is absolutely vicious and ought to be forbidden by law hereafter and ought to be destroyed whenever the situation arises which makes its destruction possible, as in the present situation of the Boston & Maine.

When a wise man or an expert lays down a general principle and backs that principle up with a prophecy and that prophecy comes true, we may nearly always accept the principle as established. The AMERICAN recalls to the minds of the business men of New England a well-remembered controversy sixteen years ago before the Massachusetts Legislature over the question of the leasing of the Fitchburg Railroad by the Boston & Maine.

There appeared before the Joint Standing Committee on Railroads, which had the matter in hand, President Percival W. Clement of the Rutland Railroad Company. Mr. Clement laid some very interesting statements of fact before the committee concerning our New England railroad conditions as they affected the business men of New England.

He showed that our freight rates were higher in New England than in any other portion of the country. He declared that in his opinion we had lost our leadership in manufacturing on account of this very fact that our railroad rates were higher than in any other portion of the country. He cited an example of freight on coal in which it appeared that the Boston & Maine charged as much per ton to haul the same coal twenty-six miles between Boston and Lowell as another railroad charged for hauling the same ton of coal four hundred miles. President Clement predicted that the decline of manufacturing interests in New England would be constant unless this evil was corrected. New England's loss of the tremendous automobile industry is a fair example of the cost of high freight rates to this community.

Now, what reason do the business men of New England suppose that President Clement, sixteen years ago, gave for these high freight rates and these unprosperous conditions for the business men of New England? On the 8th of May, 1900, President Clement said to the Massachusetts Legislature:

> "As you are well aware, most of the New England roads are leased in one way or another. So you see that coupled with the highest freight rates in the United States we find the highest dividend-paying stock. The New England roads, after collecting excessive tolls, are not able even to put the money into betterments and equipment, but are obliged, in order to maintain their organizations as at present constituted, to pay the extravagant dividends on their leased lines. For this condition of things in New England the Boston & Maine is largely responsible."

Mr. Clement continued:

> "It is contrary to the best public policy to allow one railroad to lease another at a fixed dividend on its capital stock. Dividends ought not to be fixed or guaranteed. Investments in railroad capital should take the same chances which other investments have to take."

Mr. Clement thus proceeded to lay down a principle, and we know from the decline of the Boston & Maine that the principle which he laid down and the prediction which he made have been justified and confirmed by subsequent events. We know that the Boston & Maine Railroad, as he said, has not been able, in spite of its high rates, to put sufficient "money into betterment and equipment," because it has been obliged "in order to maintain its organization as at present constituted to pay the extravagant dividends on its leased lines."

The Connecticut River Railroad Lease

PRESIDENT CLEMENT of the Rutland Railroad, speaking before the Massachusetts Legislature sixteen years ago, in denunciation of the policy of building up a railroad system by a series of leases at high, fixed dividends, also made a very interesting and significant statement concerning the Connecticut River Railroad, which is helping to hold up the reorganization and improvement of our railroad conditions in northern New England. This Connecticut River Railroad was leased by the Boston & Maine a few years before Mr. Clement made this extraordinary statement to the Legislature.

> "By the terms of that lease the Boston & Maine agreed that the Connecticut River stockholders might receive a dividend of 50 per cent. of their stock in cash, and then the Boston & Maine agreed to pay 10 per cent. on the Connecticut River capital. Mr. Tuttle says that this is a source of profit to the Boston & Maine road, but where does that money come from to make it profitable? Of course, from the people who patronize the road. Do you suppose that those patrons would have been required to pay a sum sufficient to enable the Connecticut River stockholders to divide 60 per cent. of its capital, and then pay dividends of 10 per cent. every year after if the Connecticut River had remained independent? Of course not. Such a thing would not be thought of."

Chairman Sanford of the Massachusetts Railroad Commission denounced this as a most "unconscionable transaction," but the commission was powerless to stop it.

The Boston & Maine has been ACTUALLY BORROWING money for a number of years to meet the scandalous terms of this Connecticut River Railroad lease. After receiving fifty per cent. bonus on their stock and ten per cent. dividend all these years, its representatives now have the effrontery to hold up the reorganization of the Boston & Maine, by which these leases may be cancelled and destroyed. If we cannot have such a reorganization, then the Boston & Maine ought by all means to go into the hands of a receiver immediately. There is no need for delay and no excuse for paying underwriter's fees for the renewal of the notes given by the Boston & Maine to pay extortion to some of its leased lines. By an HONEST receiver the road could be reorganized and Mr. Kimball's playthings would be left to run themselves if they did not care to go into the reorganized railroad system. The AMERICAN hopes that the directors of the Boston & Maine will show courage to go through with this process to the very end.

Many intelligent men with vision believed that when the present Wilson administration and United States Attorney-General Gregory made the New Haven Railroad disgorge the Boston & Maine, which the New Haven had helped to ruin, the State of Massachusetts ought to have purchased the New Haven interests in the road. It is not too late to do so now. SOMETHING ought to be done. Business interests of New England are in serious jeopardy by a continuance of the present situation.

We ought to have had electrification of our railroads long ago. It is an intolerable outrage that in this hot weather we are obliged to ride in such filthy cars, going to and from our business. The corrupt and incompetent railroad managers have wasted many times the money that would pay for electrification and better railroad service. Already in the West, where American citizens have more courage and more vision and do not kowtow to mere reputation and large salaries, they are enjoying fast interurban electric service and clean electric engines are now drawing the great railroad trains over the Rocky Mountains to the Pacific coast.

In any event, the time has come when fooling with Kimball and his confederates ought to stop.

But a dishonest receivership must be guarded against. In the past, railroad reorganizations under crooked receivers have been the method by which financial crooks made their fortunes. William B. Lawrence, whose fight against the control of the Boston & Maine by the New Haven Railroad was heroic and prophetic, suspects that we may not get an honest receiver. Mr. Edmund D. Codman, former president of the Fitchburg Railroad and one of the best informed and most independent and progressive men in New England, fears also that a receivership may mean further exploitation of the railroad system. The small stockholders ought to organize and to be exceedingly watchful of the proceedings before the court, and of every step and act of the receiver, after he is appointed.

Every Cat a Murderer By Mere Lust for Cruelty

Felines Slay Birds and Smaller Animals for Pleasure of Seeing Them Suffer, but Carefully Avoid Battles with Cornered Rats, Garret P. Serviss Declares

By Garrett P. Serviss

THE way of the cat is becoming harder. In New Jersey the villages and little cities are making ordinances against cats, and in Massachusetts the State Board of Agriculture has published a condemnatory brochure about cats, written by the State Ornithologist. The chief complaint is that the cat is an incorrigible enemy of birds. When a cat gets out of doors, its eye immediately seeks a bird.

If one comes within reach of its spring, it cannot resist the temptation to seize and kill the winged creature. It is not often, it is not even usual, that the killing is done for the sake of food; it is done through mere blood-thirst. Cats like to kill—when they run no danger to themselves in the operation, for they are essentially cowards.

As the Massachusetts ornithologist intimates, cats are "sportsmen." This is a cutting sarcasm. Like the man who tucks a double-barrelled gun under his arm and goes out in the dewy morning to enjoy the thrill of seeing the feathers fly at the impact of his load of shot, the cat stalks a robin, and takes an ecstatic pleasure in striking it dead. If it does not kill its victim at the first blow of its sharp claws, it will torment the wounded bird to death, and then carry it about with the air of a conqueror; but the only appetite it seeks to satisfy is the lust of murder.

Some cats are more murderous than other cats, but it is alleged—and, I believe, correctly—that no cat can be cured altogether of the desire to kill for the sake of killing; and birds are its pet victims. It is also alleged—and again, I believe, with justice—that cats are master hypocrites and the greatest of egoists. They haven't a shade of the self-sacrificing devotion of a dog.

A cat as big and powerful as a Newfoundland dog would be a peril to children and even to grown persons. It is man's friend because it knows it is not strong enough to be his enemy. The quality of mercy is not in the cat's makeup. No animal which has an instinctive love of worrying and tormenting a weaker creature, and a crippled one at that, is capable of moral education. The way of a cat with a mouse is sufficient to awaken sympathy even for that pest of the pantry.

As to the pretended usefulness of cats as destroyers of rats, the Massachusetts indictment is too moderate in alleging that not more than one cat in three ever kills a rat. It is the habit of cats to keep out of the way of rats. A rat is a mean animal, but a terrible fighter when cornered; and cats do not attack fighters. As to mice, my own experience is that a house cat will not even try to exterminate them. I rather suspect that she likes to see them about, the house being her game preserve. If a rubber ball could squeal she would as soon worry that as worry a mouse. As soon as her victim ceases to give evidences of suffering she lets it alone.

The Massachusetts ornithologist avers that the public has no conception of the enormous numbers of stray, unowned, half-wild cats that roam the woods, the fields and the neighborhood houses, barns and villages at night. We have got rid of the native wildcat, he says, and in its place we have introduced and spread broadcast a far more destructive animal, cuddled in our homes, and made a companion for our children, to whom it undoubtedly often brings unexplained disease and death.

If the owners of favorite cats could know all that those sly and treacherous animals often do at night, they would almost as soon nourish serpents in the household. The cat is a cheap pet, costing little for maintenance, and that may be one explanation of its popularity; but the cheapness is, in many cases, only apparent. The animal covers up its real costliness by night raids and secret vices.

One of the sources through which the population of wandering cats is maintained and increased is the habit of leaving house cats unguarded and uncared for during Summer absences. The animal wears only a veneer of civilization at any time, and on the least temptation it returns to a state of semi-wildness. Then it becomes more destructive to birds and other relatively inoffensive forms of wild life than any other creature.

The number of cats in the United States has been estimated by Mr. Frank M. Chapman to be at least 25,000,000, and possibly 50,000,000. The uncertainty arises both from the fact that no cat census has ever been taken, and from the absence of any basis other than guess work for calculating the number of stray cats (which, being homeless, outbuildings, woods and fields, and owing no allegiance to anybody.

These outlaws have natural enemies, among which are reckoned real wildcats (now few in number), dogs, foxes, wolves, raccoons and golden eagles. The prey of the wandering cat consists of birds, rabbits, grouse, quail, shrews, frogs and toads.

Dr. A. K. Fisher of the U. S. Geological Survey estimates that cats annually kill three and a half million birds in the State of New York alone. They climb trees to get at the nests, and thus slaughter multitudes of young birds. On some of the islands of the New England coast where government refuges for wild birds have been established, wandering cats have almost exterminated some of the colonies, merely killing the birds and leaving their bodies to dry in the wind.
